PERSONNEL--NEEDS AND ACTIVITIES

Five years ago the University of Tennessee Libraries on the Knoxville campus spent $250,819 for books, periodicals, and binding, circulated 323,131 materials, and added 32,377 new volumes, with a staff of 87 people. Today, bookstock expenditures have increased 140 per cent, added volumes 81 per cent, book use 54 per cent, and personnel 34 per cent.

The slower increase in staff may be attributed to staff capability, efficient procedures in acquiring, processing, and servicing of materials, and a low turnover in key posts. With two exceptions, the major supervisory staff in Knoxville represents at least ten years of service in the system. For supporting staff, the library is fortunate to employ currently several accomplished young men and women who will enhance librarianship whether or not they eventually seek a degree in library science. Some of these have been with us many years and we hope will continue to be with us for many more years. All our people have taken the unprecedented increases in library use and acquisitions in stride year after year, but there comes a time when the sheer weight of growing traffic overwhelms even the most efficient procedural system, when new methods must be devised or more workers immediately rushed to the rescue.

We have always believed that the best, most economical service can be had by utilizing a well-trained staff and keeping an eye out for adaptations of time-saving and accuracy producing business and management equipment. In line with this idea, the Director several years ago set up his "Youth Committee," three young men who in addition to their regular professional duties took on the investigation of automation's application to libraries. The time has now come, we feel, in the interests of effective and economical service, to speed up our investigations. In the coming year, then, an automationist will devote full time to the study and recommendation of automated procedures as they apply to the University of Tennessee Library.

In the interim between recommendation and installation, there is no denying we must have more people to serve the influx of users and to process the books for them. Additional staff will be needed for the Undergraduate Library soon to be built, for the facilities released in Main when Undergraduate moves out, for branch libraries with their increased hours and services, and for the proposed and hoped-for new Science/Technology Library.

Professional librarians have been in short supply for many years and are still scarce. A recent comparison of current salary schedules of twenty schools belonging to the Association of Southeastern Research Libraries shows Tennessee's salary scales to be near minimal in almost every category both for professional librarians and clerical and supporting staff. (Some of the ASERL member schools are Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt, LSU, Kentucky, North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi State, Florida.)

Minimum and Maximum Salaries Budgeted for 1967/68

This was a surprising revelation, and rather a disquieting one, for it may leave us vulnerable in competition for staff with other southern schools.

Staff Activities

The Mary E. Baker Scholarship, a grant of $1,000 provided by the Knoxville staff, was awarded to Colene Siler, Undergraduate Library Assistant, who will attend Emory University Library School. The scholarship, named in honor of the late Mary E. Baker, librarian at UT from 1923 to 1943, has been in existence since 1950. The staff has awarded fifteen scholarship grants to nonprofessional colleagues, an activity designed to further the library profession through recruitment of able young people to the study of library science.

The Library Staff Endowment Fund reached a total of $3,154. The fund is a part of the Library Development Program and was suggested by a staff member as appropriate participation in the Program.

Library Lecture No. 19, "Librarianship Today--Crisis or Change," was delivered on April 4th by Dr. Jerrold Orne, Librarian of the University of North Carolina.

Six promotions in rank were accomplished: two from "professional assistant" to instructor, three to assistant professor, and one to associate professor. The staff continued professional activities in the form of travel for observation and information, advisory assistance to other schools, attendance at educational and library associational meetings, and various editorial and management duties.

Thomas Rogero, Engineering Librarian, is editor of RADIATIONS, the publication of the Appalachian Chapter of the Special Libraries Association. Don Jett, Science Librarian, was named membership chairman of the SLA Chapter. He was elected to serve as chairman of the Special Libraries Section of the Tennessee Library Association for the coming year; he continued to serve as business manager for TLA's quarterly publication, TENNESSEE LIBRARIAN. John Dobson, Special Collections Librarian, edited the TENNESSEE LIBRARIAN for the fifth consecutive year. LaNelle Vandiver, Head of Processing, advised the University of Oklahoma Library on conversion to the Library of Congress Classification. Ruth Ringo, Associate Director, helped Milligan College Library prepare a request for a grant from the Association of College and Research Libraries. G.M. Abel, Assistant Director, was a member of the UT Memphis Center Self-Study Committee and the visitation committee of the Southern Association in its evaluation of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, North Carolina. Jesse Mills, Undergraduate Librarian, was on the visitation committee for Florida Atlantic University at Boca Raton. Olive Branch, Acquisitions Librarian, was one of the visitation committee for Georgia Southwestern College in Americus. At the spring conference of the Tennessee Library Association Miss Branch was elected chairman of the Tennessee Chapter, Library Resources and Technical Services of the American Library Association.

Association meetings attended by the staff include the American Library Association Summer and Midwinter conferences, Special Libraries Association, Tennessee Library Association, Southeastern Library Association, Association of Southeastern Research Libraries, Association of Research Libraries, and Tennessee Education Association.

LIBRARY USE AND SERVICE

Statewide use of library books advanced from 622,900 volumes circulated in 1965/66 to 703,525 in 1966/67. On the Knoxville campus book circulation was 16 per cent higher than last year, and questions answered by the Knoxville reference librarians rose 27 per cent, increases of consequence.

Record keeping affords some measure of the use of libraries, but these recorded circulation statistics include only those books actually charged over the counter; they leave uncounted in any way the great mass of informal use of books, periodicals, newspapers, indexes, guides, and other reference tools in all open-shelf and accessible installations. As to the count of reference questions, there are no user cards to add up at the end of the day, and the busy reference librarian may not always tabulate every question she answers. To strain at keeping records could defeat the purpose of reference service. Just as statistics cannot encompass the extent of library use, neither can statistical tables reflect the use of the physical facilities for study. In Knoxville the lounges and reading rooms are always crowded, and one of our important responsibilities is to afford the student an inviting and comfortable place near books, with minimal barriers to thwart his examination and use of them. In line with this charge, library hours were increased from 90 hours open a week to 98 hours: 8:00 to 11:30 p. m. on weekdays, 8:00 until 6:00 on Saturday, and from 1:00 until 11:30 on Sundays. During examination weeks, the libraries were open until midnight. The Undergraduate Library will contain a special study area which is expected to be kept open for long hours, all night if need be, during both regular and examination schedules.

Included in the circulation statistics are the records on interlibrary loans: 11,077 transactions in borrowing and lending volumes in Knoxville alone, more than half of which were recorded by the Main Library's Reference (where books are borrowed for use of faculty and graduate students) and Circulation (where books are lent to other libraries) Departments. Interlibrary loan activity in the branches is confined to direct local requests, such as those from TVA, Oak Ridge, Memorial Research Center, and others.

Interlibrary loan transactions in the Main Library have increased from 2,700 to 7,642 in the past five years, growing from a relatively minor public courtesy to a service needing the full-time preoccupation of at least one staff member in the Reference and Circulation Departments. In order to handle the increased volume of borrowing and lending and to relieve Circulation and Reference from threatened interference to their first duty, service to the students, interlibrary borrowing and lending will be merged into a single unit. Miss Helen Hier, former Undergraduate Reference Librarian, and her staff will introduce the combined service in the fall of 1967.

A library in a state-supported school of higher education has an obligation to the citizens, schools, and libraries within the state, and one way of discharging this obligation is by interlibrary loan service, thereby backing up the resources of the smaller schools and libraries, supplementing their holdings, just as the University of Tennessee libraries are in turn supplemented by the resources of the great research libraries. Interlibrary loan service is a cooperative action between libraries great and small, an important part of library service, regulated by the Interlibrary Loan Code of the American Library Association.

In line with increased cooperation, the Knoxville libraries will offer direct loans to the faculty and staff of the area schools and colleges, upon recommendation of the school's librarian. Local business and professional people are also given borrowing privileges, subject to the limitations imposed by student and faculty needs.

Other services:-- The use of copying machines has become an indispensable service in libraries. Copiers are in use in Main and 4 of the branches, with plans laid to install them in the other libraries after the beginning of the new fiscal year.

For many years the library has employed messenger service for intra-library communication and pickup and delivery between library and nonlibrary offices, a half-day activity until July 1966. A truck is assigned to the library full time so that urgent deliveries may be made at any time during the day, in addition to completing regular routes.

THE NEED FOR SPACE

The Undergraduate Library is expected to be ready for occupancy in March 1969. The Agriculture Library will move into quarters vacated by Plant Sciences in Morgan Hall in the winter of 1967. In the meantime, new seats and shelving will be added to existing libraries wherever possible to increase seating and book capacities. American Library Association's Standards recommend that at least one third of the student enrollment be able to find seating accommodations in the library at a given time. Library seating capacity on the Knoxville campus has decreased steadily, and we expect, in the light of anticipated 1967/68 enrollment, to be able to accommodate no more than 10 per cent of the student body in 1967/68. The Undergraduate Library will relieve the situation somewhat, but even then Tennessee's percentage will not approach the minimum recommendation of the American Library Association.

Space is one of the most compelling needs for the libraries in Knoxville. The proposal for a Science/Technology Library in the Biennial Program is most urgently reiterated, as well as the recommendation that additions approved in the University building program not fail to include expansion for any branch libraries located therein. Recommendations for faculty studies, a seminar room, and expanded work space for technical services in the Main Library are repeated.

LIBRARIES ACROSS THE STATE

A library has been established in the Space Institute at Tullahoma. Helen Burnett Mason, wife of the chairman of Tullahoma's Faculty Library Committee, deserves praise and gratitude for her initiative and unstinting service in the development of this new facility, statistics for which are included for the first time in the Library's annual report.

Memphis:--Space needs in Memphis have been somewhat alleviated by the removal of the carpentry and paint shops from the library building and remodeling of the released space for library use, decreasing for a time the need for a new building. Memphis received a Federal grant under the Medical Library Resources Act for library materials. The Science Librarian's Training Program, beginning in 1966, has provided staff members for three medical libraries and is expected to benefit not only the trainees but the Medical Unit's library staff as well.

Martin:--The new library building for the Martin Branch will be occupied sometime in January of 1968. This construction is expected to provide Martin with a functional and attractive library building.

Nashville:--The library administration in Knoxville has served as consultants for the growing library for the University Extension Center in Nashville. This library is important to the effective operation of the Center, and every effort should be made to provide adequate quarters for it in the new Center building.

RESOURCES

The first six months of the fiscal year saw an unprecedented increase in the acquisition of library materials, with funds at the end of the period reflecting this activity to such an extent that the library was obliged to request additional library book funds from the University Administration. The increase in buying was caused by (1) a need for duplicate copies of many titles; (2) new areas of study requiring materials new to the collection; (3) the steady progress of graduate and doctoral programs; and (4) new areas of research demanding files of expensive materials. In the words of the Acquisition Librarian, "Neither the need for materials nor the enthusiasm of professors and library staff in acquiring these materials diminishes; rather there has been a quickening of interest and enthusiasm, a noticeable increase in activity throughout the entire University."

The University Administration made available a substantial sum to be used for book purchases during the remainder of the fiscal year.

Gifts to the Library Development Program accounted for 3,670 books and $113,051 for the purchase of books, making the total amassed by this program since its beginning more than 40,000 books and $352,979 in endowments, restricted funds, and currently spendable funds. Outstanding among gifts in 1966/67 is the Blanton Collection, the personal library of Margaret Gray Blanton and the late Dr. Smiley Blanton, and their manuscripts, typescripts, correspondence, diplomas, citations, and collection of material in areas of their interests. This gift has added substantially to the enlargement of holdings in undergraduate, graduate, and Special Collections. A list of notable acquisitions and gifts for 1966/67 follows.

From the report of the Special Collections Librarian to the Committee on Special Documents

- Blanton, Smiley. Papers. ca. 1,000 pieces. Correspondence, literary manuscripts, addresses, research notes, citations, degrees, etc. of the noted psychiatrist and author. Gift of Mrs. Blanton.
- Bledsonian Banner. "History of Bledsoe County." Typescript of newspaper articles published during 1957. 24p. Gift of Mrs. C. P. Kelley.
- Browlow, John B. Letter, dated Washington, D. C., Feb. 4, 1890, to William G. McAdoo, Knoxville, Tennessee. 5p. Handwritten. Concerns text of an Andrew Johnson speech delivered in Knoxville shortly before the presidential election of 1860. Gift of P. M. Hamer.
- Campbell, Thomas Jefferson. Newspaper articles on Tennessee history. 29p. A bibliography, handwritten (Xerox copy). Gift of Mrs. C. P. Kelley.
- Cate, A. M. Letters, 1868. 6 pieces. Typescript. Written to his brother, G. E. Cate of Chattanooga, while serving in the Tennessee Senate. Gift of Dr. S. J. Folmsbee.
- Civil Rights Collection. Tapes, correspondence, miscellaneous printed materials, photographs, posters, etc. relating to the civil rights movement in general. ca. 3,000 pieces. Solicited from various sources.
- Haynie, Charles A. Papers. ca. 600 pieces. Concerns voter registration in Fayette County, Tennessee, 1963-1965. Includes films and tapes. Gift of Mr. Haynie.

- Hodes, Jane E. Papers. ca. 200 pieces. Correspondence and related materials concerning SNCC organization, 1964-1966. Gift of Mrs. Hodes.
- Posey, Buford. Civil rights materials. ca. 100 pieces. Letters, transcripts, pictures, tapes. Gift of Mr. Posey.
- Redmond, S. R. Papers. ca. 200 pieces. Correspondence, legal briefs, affidavits, and related materials concerning school desegregation in St. Louis. Gift of Mr. Redmond.
- Rogers, Walter and Elizabeth. Papers. ca. 150 pieces. Letters and miscellaneous printed materials relating to labor and civil rights movements, 1924-1967.
