Lindsay Young Receives UT Law Alumni Outstanding Public Service Award

Knoxville attorney Lindsay Young was selected by a committee of UT law alumni to receive the College of Law's Outstanding Public Service Award for 1985. The award was announced at the school's Annual Fund Appreciation Dinner Friday, November 1, 1985 at the Knoxville Hilton.

A partner in the law firm of McCampbell & Young, Lindsay Young has accumulated an exceptional list of accomplishments. He has been a friend and benefactor to such organizations as the Boy Scouts, the United Way, the Fort Sanders Foundation, the Knoxville Symphony, and the Knoxville Opera. He has been a trustee of Knoxville College, has served on the Board of Trustees of the Dulin Art Gallery, and has been a member of both the Chancellor's Associates and the Development Council of the University of Tennessee. A 1935 graduate of the College of Law, Young is also a Fellow of the American College of Probate Counsel.

The purpose of the award is to acknowledge alumni for their long-term and often unrecognized contributions to their communities, to the public, and to the legal profession.

At the same event, Dean Penegar also presented Alumni Leadership Awards to Ross Clark of Memphis, Class of '60 and Chairperson of the Alumni Advisory Council, Knoxvillian L. Anderson Galyon, Ill, Class of '71 and Chairperson of the Law Annual Fund, and W. Allen Separk of Marietta, Georgia, Class of '69 and a Class Agent for the school.

Toxey Sewell Retires (the Second Time Around)
Fishing, golf, and perhaps a little piano-playing are pastimes in which Toxey Sewell hopes to be able to engage after a lengthy career in the Judge Advocate General's Corps and nineteen (19) years on the faculty of the University of Tennessee College of Law.

His gentlemanly nature, his distinctive chuckle, and a teaching style which conveyed to students his concern for their education are characteristics of Toxey Sewell often cited by former students when they reminisce about his classes in Proper­ 45 ty Law and Procedure and related subjects.

Following graduation from the University of Alabama Law School in 1947, Professor Sewell was assigned to work with General Douglas MacArthur in Tokyo. Toxey served in several different locations, including a stint in Washington D.C. and Panama, before he returned to the U.S. to work in the Pentagon.

While in the JAGC he gained extensive experience in several fields, such as international law, property law, and contract law, from all possible vantage points, defense counsel and prosecutor as well as judge. He also earned the LL.M. degree from George Washington University in 1954.

In 1963, Professor Sewell was appointed the Academic Director of the Judge Advocate General’s School in Charlottesville, Virginia. The position is the equivalent of the dean of a law school.

Three years later, Toxey Sewell conclud­ed the first segment of his legal career and started the second by accepting Dean Harold Warner’s invitation to join the faculty of the University of Tennessee College of Law.

His first duties at UT included being associate director of the Legal Clinic, which was a required course at the time.
His scholarship includes articles on the government as a “proprietor of land,” administrative law, and property law in the Indiana, Oklahoma, and Tennessee law reviews, among others. He was an advisor to legislative committees regarding the Tennessee Administrative Procedures Act, and he served on the faculty of continuing education programs on related subjects.

At a dinner held in his honor, Toxey Sewell was presented with a new fishing rod and reel, a tackle box, and a putter to help him embark on an active retirement.
Jerry Phillips offered a sampling of what retirement life should be like with a musical rendition of the title song from “Camelot.”
We hope Toxey and wife Marge will enjoy a life of “happily ever-aftering.”

Fred Thomforde Resigns to Enter Practice

The University’s loss is the Knoxville Bar’s gain. Fred Thomforde, a member of the UT faculty since 1972, has resigned to join the law firm of Stone & Hinds in Knoxville.

His fellow faculty members bade him a fond farewell via a friendly “roast” on December 20 at the Downtown Hilton in Knoxville. Roasters included UTK
Chancellor Jack Reese, Dean Penegar, and Professor Jerry Phillips. Master of Ceremonies Pat Hardin presented Thomforde with a gift of Hartmann luggage from his colleagues and a plaque in appreciation of his thirteen years of leadership and service. Even Santa Claus showed up to wish him well.

Fred Thomforde earned his J.D. degree from Valparaiso University and his J.S.D. degree from Columbia University. He was an attorney with the Securities and Exchange Commission, an Assistant Professor of Law at Valparaiso, and a Ford Urban Law Fellow at Columbia before he accepted a position on the faculty at the University of Tennessee. In 1980, he was selected to hold the Lindsay Young Professorship, an endowed chair intended to recognize and promote classroom teaching.

Chosen as the Outstanding Teacher in forde’s teaching and scholarship have focused on Administrative Law, Corporation Law, Legal Ethics, and Securities.
He has written articles on administrative law and securities regulation in such law reviews as Michigan, N.Y.U., Tennessee, and Osgoode Hall.

Thomforde’s public service activities have benefited both state and local justice. He served ten years on the Board of Directors of the Knoxville Legal Aid Society. Since 1982, he has been a member of the Tennessee Model Rules of Professional Conduct Committee, and he recently agreed to serve on the Tennessee Corporation Law Revision Committee.

The comments made, whether in jest or in earnest, illustrated the respect and affection felt towards this departing member of our faculty. We wish him well in his new role as a practitioner of the discipline he has taught to so many of our alumni.

Fred and Fran Thomforde seem to have the holiday spirit as they share some good cheer with old St. Nick during the farewell dinner in December.
Discounting the power of presidents to appoint lifetime positions, Bell mused about the fact that the middle and three votes on each end of the political/philosophical spectrum. When asked about the trend toward constitutional judicial review, Bell responded to questions by observing that this is a good time for creative lawyers to challenge the status quo, Bell stated that “the law is not as stable as it once was.”

The occasion for these remarks was Bell’s visit to the George C. Taylor Law Center on November 7, 1985. He spoke to an enthralled audience of law students and faculty about the debate between current Attorney General Edwin Meese and the U.S. Supreme Court on such issues as civil rights, the exclusionary rule, and abortion. He believes Thomas Jefferson would have approved of such a healthy struggle between two branches of government as a part of the system of checks and balances.

“The Supreme Court is in danger of becoming an ecclesiastical court,” Bell warned. The Attorney General who served during the Carter Administration from 1977 to 1979 and previously served on the U.S. Court of Appeals for fifteen (15) years suggested that the nation’s highest court accept fewer religious cases.

Now a senior partner and chairman of the firm of King & Spalding (Atlanta and Washington), Bell responded to questions from the audience following his address. When asked about the trend toward conservatism in the decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court, he mentioned one important check on the Court: “Father Time.” He characterized the current Court as “balanced,” with three votes in the middle and three votes on each end of the political/philosophical spectrum. Discounting the power of presidents to control Supreme Court decisions through appointments, Bell mused about the fact that presidents are often surprised by the apparent change of philosophy in justices after their appointment to lifetime positions on the Court.

Appellate Practice Manual Published

The Tennessee Bar Association’s recently published manual on Appellate Practice in Tennessee was researched by and produced through the Public Law Institute. Law students Thomas Bickers and Eric Morrison performed much of the research and cite-verification for the book. Each of the eight chapters was written by a leading practitioner, judge, or professor in Tennessee. Several of our alumni contributed to the manual: Paul Campbell, III, Class of ’75, the Hon. Ben H. Cantrell, Class of ’66, Donald F. Paine, Class of ’63, and Joseph M. Tipton, Class of ’71. Professor John Sobieski wrote the chapter on Civil Appeals, and Associate Dean Julie Hardin co-edited the publication with Gary N. Hunt, Associate Executive Director of the Tennessee Bar Association. To acquire a copy, contact the Tennessee Bar Association at 3622 West End Avenue, Nashville, TN 37205.

Refine Your Litigation Skills at the 1986 Tennessee College of Trial Advocacy

Wednesday, May 21 through Monday, May 26

The 1986 Tennessee College of Trial Advocacy will feature Ronald L. Carlson, a widely-published authority on trial practice who is currently a Distinguished Visiting Professor at the University of Georgia School of Law. The remainder of the College’s faculty are all practicing attorneys with extensive trial experience, and many are UT law alumni:

- Carl W. Eshbaugh of Knoxville, ’74
- Olen G. Haynes of Johnson City, ’68
- J. Houston Gordon of Covington, ’70
- Robert E. Pryor of Knoxville, ’69
- Thomas S. Scott, Jr. of Knoxville, ’67
- Richard D. Speight of Nashville
- Joseph M. Tipton of Knoxville, ’71

Professor Gary Anderson,
Founder and Planning Chairperson

Sample session topics are direct and cross examination, exhibits and demonstrative evidence, jury selection, opening statements, and closing arguments. Participants will have opportunities to review videotapes of their own performances to determine which skills need refinement.

Tuition for this intensive six-day skills-training program is $475 per person. A deposit of $100 is required by May 9, 1986, as space is limited. In addition to the University of Tennessee College of Law, this program is sponsored by the Tennessee Association of Civil Defense Lawyers, the Tennessee Bar Association, and the Tennessee Defense Lawyers Association, and the Tennessee Trial Lawyers Association. For registration information, contact Joann Gillespie or Cheryl Mays at 615/974-4348.

Senator Howard Baker Appointed Adjunct Professor

The Honorable Howard Henry Baker, Jr. has been appointed Adjunct Professor for the University of Tennessee. The 1949 graduate of UT College of Law recently chose not to seek re-election to the U.S. Senate, where he had served eighteen years.

Computers Coming on Strong in the Library and the Clinic

One of the renovation projects last fall resulted in the creation of a Computer Lab in the Law Library. A seminar room (212) was converted to use for microforms and computers in the library. In addition to access terminals for both Lexis and Westlaw, there will be personal computers available for word processing and other computer applications for students and faculty. Director Bill Beintema has exciting plans for additional "computerization" of the library which will benefit the entire law school community.

The Legal Clinic is also a pioneer in the use of computers in the law. Susan Kovac has announced that our legal clinic, along with the clinics of Harvard and New Mexico, will be collaborating with Brigham Young University in the development and testing of computer software for use in teaching clinical courses. The experimental software developed at Brigham Young will be ready for testing this summer and should be ready for use in the fall. The clinic is acquiring an integrated system of computer hardware which will serve their administrative as well as their instructional needs.

Law-Related Art Collection Established

In order to provide the law school community and the Knoxville legal community with exposure to the artistic flavor of the law, the College of Law has established a Law-Related Art Collection.

Professor Neil Cohen, who conceived of such a collection, will be its first "curator". An advisory committee of alumni, students, and faculty will assist in the management of the collection.

Staff member and art enthusiast Micki Tweed has agreed to help catalogue the college's current holdings, acquired over the years from alumni and other sources. Donations of appropriate items to the collection are invited, as well as financial support for acquisitions. For more information, contact Neil Cohen at 615/974-6855.

Hunton and Williams Scholarship Established

The law firm of Hunton and Williams, which recently opened an office in Knoxville, has established the Hunton and Williams Scholarship at the University of Tennessee with a $1500 gift.

The first recipient of a Hunton and Williams Scholarship is Robert Meyers, a third-year law student from Memphis who is also President of the Student Bar Association. At a luncheon honoring Meyers and his benefactors, Dean Penegar welcomed the firm to the professional community of Knoxville and expressed the appreciation of our faculty, administration, and students for the firm's generosity.
Justice Department Attorney Receives Appointment to Faculty

R. Lawrence Dessem has accepted an appointment to the faculty as Associate Professor of Law. A 1976 graduate of Harvard Law School, he was a law clerk for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio and Staff Counsel to the National Education Association before joining the U.S. Department of Justice.

Professor Dessem was Senior Trial Counsel in the Civil Division of the U.S. Department of Justice just prior to accepting this position at the University of Tennessee. He has published articles in the Journal of Legal Education, the Ohio State Law Journal, and the Harvard Women's Law Journal.

Since arriving in time for the Fall term, he has been teaching Criminal Advocacy in the Legal Clinic.

Frank Wilson Scholarship Fund Endowed

We have received almost all of the $10,000 necessary to establish an endowment fund in honor of Judge Frank Wilson, a distinguished member of the UT law class of 1941 who passed away in September, 1982. Appointed in 1961 to the federal bench of the Eastern District of Tennessee by President Kennedy, Judge Wilson was elevated to Chief Judge in 1970 and served in that capacity for the remainder of his career.

He was widely respected as a man of wisdom, dignity, courtesy, patience, honor, and compassion. This scholarship is one way for his fellow classmates, friends, and family to provide an incentive and a reward to generations of law students to come who attempt to emulate the qualities of this special alumnus.

Nuclear Waste Disposal Colloquium Held March 13-14

"Nuclear Waste Disposal: A Colloquium" was sponsored by the Tennessee Law Review, the College of Law, and the Center for Energy, Environment and Resources on March 13 and 14 at the University Center and the Taylor Law Center.

Dixy Lee Ray, formerly Governor of Washington state and Chairperson of the Atomic Energy Commission (forerunner of the U.S. Department of Energy), was the keynote speaker at the banquet on Thursday, March 13. Other speakers and panelists for the two-day event included Dr. Jeffrey Schevitz of the Department of Applied Systems Analysis in West Germany, A.H. Schilling, Counsel for Battelle Human Affairs Research in Washington, D.C., Susan Wiltshire of Massachusetts who serves on the Board on Radioactive Waste Management of the National Academy of Sciences, Steve Frishman, Director of Nuclear Waste Programs for the Office of the Governor of Texas, and Gary Davis, Counsel for the Legal Environmental Assistance Foundation.

Thursday's presentations and workshops focused on monitored retrievable storage (MRS), while the emphasis on Friday was on repository siting. A special symposium issue of the law review will be published from papers prepared by the Colloquium's faculty.

Law Week 1986: Something for Everyone

A fun run and a tennis tournament are tentatively scheduled to kick off the 1986 Law Week festivities at Taylor Law Center, April 7-11. (Due to a conflict with exams, we cannot celebrate Law Day on the national "Law Day", May 1.) Other events open to our alumni are:

Thursday, April 8: Ray H. Jenkins Trial Competition
Wednesday, April 9: Ice Cream Spree at noon, followed by Auction to Benefit Novak Loan Fund
Thursday, April 10: Advocates' Prize Moot Court Competition
Friday, April 11:

The East Tennessee Lawyers Association for Women has also planned the second annual forum about lawyering on Thursday at 3:00 p.m. Please join us for any or all of these events.

RENOVATIONS BRING RESULTS!

CAREER SERVICES: NEW NAME, NEW HOME
The Director of Career Services, Joann Gillespie, and Placement Assistant Cheryl Mays (kneeling) are just settling in to their new offices across the hall from their old location. Formerly the Office of Career Planning and Placement, the Career Services' suite now features three specially designed interview rooms, complete with windows.

THIS IS THE STUDENT LOUNGE?
Believe it! The student lounge has a brighter, cleaner, and cooler feel to it thanks to substantial expansion, redesign, and refurbishment. We even managed to cut a window in the outside wall to eliminate the old “dungeon” effect.

Other Renovations Recently Completed:
The reconfiguration of classroom A117; New offices for student organizations; A new "Computer Lab" for the Library; New courtroom space in the Legal Clinic; Transformation of the Art Gallery into a seminar room; Enlargement of seminar room A113; A new women's bathroom in the basement; New spaces for PLI and Word Processing A new duplication and supplies room; and An improved air conditioning system for the basement. Come by for a visit and see these changes for yourself!

Taylor Law Center Hosts Appalachian Regional of Jessup International Competition
On February 13th and 14th, the University of Tennessee College of Law hosted the Appalachian Regional of the 1986 Philip C. Jessup International Moot Court Competition. A snowstorm delayed the arrival of some of the twelve teams competing in the event, but it failed to dampen their spirits.

UT's own team took second-place honors, losing in the finals to a team from the College of William and Mary. Joyce McMonagle of UT tied for fourth place in the Best Oralist category. The other members of the UT team were Lynn Bergwerk, Diedre Dixon, Tricia Strzelecki, and J. Lynn Taylor. Their faculty advisor was Gerald McGinley.

Sandra Cosby, Chairperson of the Moot Court Board, served as Regional Administrator of this successful event. Dean John Sebert and staff member Judy Barckhoff also made significant contributions to its success. Area judges and attorneys who agreed to judge the preliminary rounds were evaluated quite highly by the participants.

Judges for the final round of the Appalachian Regional were, from left; Professor Ved. P. Nanda from the University of Denver, the Honorable H. Ted Milburn, Class of '59 and Judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, and Herbert S. Sanger, Jr., General Counsel for TVA.

Charles H. Miller Lecture Features Julius L. Chambers of NAACP
The 1985 Charles Henderson Miller Lecture in Professional Responsibility was delivered on October 31 by Julius L. Chambers, Director-Counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. Chambers earned his J.D. degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he was Editor-in-Chief of the law review. He also earned a Master of Laws degree from Columbia University.
In 1963, he became the first legal intern with the NAACP. He handled many civil rights cases while in private practice in Charlotte, North Carolina. He was formerly senior partner in the law firm of Chambers, Ferguson, Watt, Wallas & Adkins, P.A. Chambers became Director-Counsel for the NAACP in 1984 and continues to lecture at the University of Pennsylvania School of Law and Columbia Law School.

Gobert Exchanges Roles with Professor from England
While Professor Jim Gobert is sharing American teaching techniques with law students in England this spring, their American counterparts will receive the benefit of the knowledge and experience of E.K. Banakas, Lecturer in Law at the University of Essex. Professor Gobert will return to UT in the fall with an abundance of experiences to share with us, no doubt.
Professor Banakas holds a Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Cambridge, England and earned a Bachelor of Laws with Distinction from the University of Athens, Greece. He has an impressive list of publications on subjects such as commercial law, professional negligence, comparative law, and jurisprudence, as well as the Greek Civil Code.
Torts and Comparative Law are the subjects Banakas is teaching this spring, and this summer he plans to offer courses in European Civil Law and Jurisprudence. His wife, Lela Banakas, is also an attorney with research interests in Roman law, particularly Byzantine Family Law.

Designation: College of Law

When you receive a solicitation on behalf of the University of Tennessee, you can designate your gift for use by the College of Law. Just write on your check and on the pledge card, "For College of Law". It's as simple as that.

Please be assured that gifts designated for our use are deposited into our current support account. We will be notified of your designation, and the Dean's office has complete control over the use of the funds.

Our college traditionally excels in comparison with other colleges on the Knoxville campus in total dollars raised through our own Annual Fund mail appeals. This past Fall, we again set the record in returns for the Knoxville campus, improving 33% over last year's figures. Chairperson, L. Anderson Gaylon, III wrote a letter in December to all our alumni asking for their support of the school, and the response was tremendous for a mail appeal: 152 gifts representing $18,165. That is only a portion of the total dollars raised throughout the year via the Annual Fund and the Class Agent program, but it shows the strong support we receive from our alumni.

Thank you!
Career Services

JOANN GILLESPIE

The Office of Career Services, formerly Career Planning and Placement, has much to offer our alumni: assistance in filling a position as well as individual help in seeking a career change.

On-Campus Interviewing
Spring: February 3 - April 27
Fall: September 8 - November 25
After you schedule a date to interview candidates on-campus, a notice describing your position and the qualifications you seek will be posted. Resumes will be forwarded to you, and we will arrange interviews according to your requests.

Resume-Forwarding Service
Even if you cannot conduct interviews on-campus, we will post your position notice and forward resumes of interested students to you.

Direct Contact Service
If you prefer that students mail their resumes with cover letters directly to you, your position notice will be posted with these instructions.

Employment Opportunities Newsletter
Whether you are seeking a career change for yourself or would like to hire an experienced attorney, our monthly newsletter can help. There is no charge for listing positions. If you would like to be on the mailing list let us know.

For further information about any of these services, contact Director Joann Gillespie or Placement Assistant Cheryl Mays at 615/974-4348.

Summer Law Clerkships
A summer clerk can be a valuable addition to your office staff, more than paying his or her way by performing many of the tasks which occupy so much of your time. Firms, corporations, and government agencies increasingly use the summer clerkship to evaluate students for possible permanent employment. Certainly you can learn more about a student in three months than in an interview.

The activities listed below, though not exhaustive, offer some ideas for using a law clerk to your best advantage:

I. Research and Writing
Interoffice and trial memos, client opinion letters, cite-verification and editing drafts of pleadings, interrogatories, contracts, legislation, etc.

II. Investigation
Interviewing witnesses, collecting documents and physical evidence, taking photos, preparing exhibits, etc.

III. Trial
Filing pleadings, taking notes, securing attendance of witnesses, investigating juror verdict records, emergency research, drafting instructions and verdicts, arranging and supervising service of process, etc.

IV. Miscellaneous
Filing, performing intake interviews, researching title records, reshelving books, scanning advance sheets, etc.

Consider how much an eager law student can do for you! Please contact us to post a listing at 615/974-4348.
