Revised UT Code of Conduct

Reaching for greater excellence in our classrooms, laboratories and partnerships requires that we also focus on our workplace culture and commitment to responsible and ethical behavior.

A new code of conduct, applicable to University of Tennessee employees, has been revised for two purposes:

- To better facilitate a UT workplace culture that promotes responsible and ethical behavior
- To better facilitate University compliance with standards established by federal guidelines

Please take a few minutes to review the code of conduct and take note of the areas it covers and the examples it provides.

The code does not replace existing University policies but supplements and clarifies procedures and rules in areas such as respecting others, reporting violations and avoiding conflicts of interest.

To learn more about the code, please visit www.tennessee.edu/code.

Questions can be directed to the HR Call Center at (888) 444-8847.

All the best,
Joe
