From the Executive Director...

Jim Thomas, Executive Director
jim.thomas@tennessee.edu

WHILE OUR SPECIFIC ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES DIFFER, MTAS enjoys a strong relationship with the Tennessee Municipal League (TML) as we both work for the welfare and benefit of town and city governments in Tennessee. It is in that regard that I want to remind you of an upcoming series of meetings hosted by TML.

Jim Thomas

Each year at the outset of the Tennessee legislative session, TML conducts meetings in each of its eight districts across the state. At those meetings, TML staff update participants concerning ongoing and anticipated issues the state legislature will consider in the upcoming session that may impact town and city governments in the future. The meetings also provide attendees the opportunity to express thoughts and ideas about issues they currently deal with to the TML staff and other municipal government attendees. Here is the meeting schedule for your use in making plans to attend. If you can't make the one for your district, you're welcome to attend any of the others.

Several MTAS staff members will attend each of the meetings. I'll be attending the meeting for District 2 and I hope to see a bunch of you in that district then.

Lastly, know that MTAS finished 2014 after having worked shoulder to shoulder with many of you. While it's our job to do so, it was also a pleasure, and we look forward to the same opportunities in 2015. I enjoy and look forward to hearing from you about our successes AND our shortfalls. Promoting great local government is what we do every day. Thanks for letting us serve you in doing so.

TREEDC UPDATE

MTAS, TREEDC and Tennessee Tech University Partner with Philippine University Extension Providers at the December 2014 PAEPI Convention

Tennessee Renewable Energy and Economic Development Council (TREEDC) delegates representing local governments, businesses and academia recently participated in the Philippine Association of Extension Program Implementers (PAEPI) 4th National Biennial Convention. PAEPI is a private, non-stock, non-profit, professional organization dedicated to the promotion and enhancement of the role of extension personnel as key players in people empowerment for sustainable community development. A total of 84 Philippine colleges and universities were represented at the convention.

TREEDC International Affairs Director Douglas Jackson, The University of Tennessee MTAS Management Consultant Warren Nevad, and Tennessee Tech University (TTU) Vice President of Research and Economic Development Dr. Bharat Soni provided renewable energy-related presentations and served as judges for extension research-related best practices. Outcomes generated from the convention included the following:

- 1) Development of a Master Memorandum of Understanding between PAEPI, Tennessee Tech and TREEDC, which results in a consortium of Philippine sister colleges for TTU;
- 2) Building stronger academic and municipal links as it relates to renewable energy;
- 3) Assistance to PAEPI in recruiting more member colleges to its organization;
- 4) Planning for an International Trade Mission with Tennessee officials and technology providers in Summer 2015 to explore upcoming project proposals from PAEPI member schools;
- 5) Planning for a PAEPI Conference with the Affiliated Renewable Energy Centers that are part of the PAEPI-TTU network.
- 6) Review and discussion of the Extension Services provided by the University of Tennessee; and
- 7) Development of energy efficiency benchmarking practices for Philippine member academic institutions.

TREEDC has developed a comprehensive network of many Philippine colleges, local government units (LGUs) and related businesses to advance renewables in the Philippines through TREEDC technology providers in the United States. TREEDC has replicated its developmental approach in the Philippines that was originally created in Tennessee to achieve significant renewable energy progress in the Volunteer State during the past six years.

And other news from TREEDC... December 2014 was a busy month for TREEDC!

Finance Leaders Learning from Each Other

Brad Harris, MTAS Finance and Accounting Consultant

MTAS FINANCE AND ACCOUNTING Consultant Brad Harris recently led a roundtable meeting in Winchester for cities in the lower middle Tennessee region. Representatives from Winchester, Huntland, Shelbyville, Tracy City, Eagleville, Decherd, Petersburg and Tullahoma attended the roundtable. The purpose of the meeting was to provide finance directors and city recorders the opportunity to discuss a variety of finance-related topics among themselves and with MTAS representatives in an informal and informative setting. Some of the topics discussed included handling of credit cards and online payments, pension reporting, automated cash receipting for airports, the Affordable Care Act and labor law posters.

“When I first started working in the government finance world, I was looking for anyone who could help me understand the many complex issues that I faced daily,” Harris said. “A group of school finance directors had a quarterly meeting in East Tennessee to do just that – run ideas by each other, ask questions to peers, and learn from each other. I soon learned that sitting around the table discussing ideas with my peers was a great way to learn, and it helped me develop a network of colleagues that I could call on with questions. To this day I still utilize that network of peers.”

As an MTAS consultant Harris decided to build on that concept for the cities that are in his territory. Harris has led roundtable meetings in Sevierville, Athens, Chattanooga, Winchester and Graysville. A city will host the event and nearby cities are invited to attend. Harris considers the events a success if participants leave the discussions feeling that their knowledge has been increased and that they have added to their network of peers to can call on when they have a question. Harris plans to host more of these roundtable discussions in the New Year.
