CCI DEDICATES PEYTON MANNING CLASSROOM

The College of Communication and Information (CCI) has dedicated a classroom in honor of former Volunteer quarterback and CCI alumnus Peyton Manning.

The dedication of the classroom in the Communications Building also marked the inception of the Peyton Manning Communications Enrichment Endowment. The fund will provide ongoing support for a variety of educational initiatives within the college's School of Communication Studies. Manning was the top Speech Communications graduate in Spring 1997, and he received the College of Communication and Information's Hileman Distinguished Alumni Award in 2007. + read more

JEM GRADUATE STUDENT WINS MAJOR AWARD

Marlene Taylor, a graduate student in Journalism and Electronic Media specializing in science writing, was honored by the Federation of Earth Science Information Partners at its recent conference in Knoxville.

Taylor proposed a start-up blog that will use multi-media articles to explain the rehabilitation of Beaver Creek in northern

Knox County by various people and organizations (including UT researchers). + read more

FIVE TIPS FOR MAXIMIZING YOUR SEARCH ENGINE SEARCHES

by Dr. Suzie Allard, associate professor and assistant director of CCI's School of Information Sciences

1) Tell it what you want: Use quotes. This tells the search engine to look for the words in the exact order you typed them which produces a shorter results list with more relevant items. + read more
