THE UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE RECORD

Volume 73, Issue No. 3, May, 1970. Published in January, March, May, July, September, November, and December by The University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tennessee 37916. Second-class postage paid at Knoxville, Tennessee.

Foreword

In this, the Ninth Report of the Library Development Program, 1968-1969, we have no milestones—such as the millionth volume—to comment on nor do we have any single exciting gift which engages our attention. Rather, we call your attention to two newly established endowment funds of which we are extremely proud, to several outstanding gifts which have enriched our collections and to our many patrons, donors, and contributors who continue their donations.

In making a statistical comparison of funds and books received and in counting the numbers of contributors of books as well as money for the years 1967/68 and 1968/69, we find the results to be quite similar. For 1968/69 total funds amounted to $84,535.92, the number of books received came to 4,669 and our contributors totaled 1,279. Interest from our endowment funds has added another $8,700 to our income during the year allowing us to purchase many exciting titles we may have considered too expensive for purchase from the regular book allocations which must take care of our every day need.

It is to our many friends, those who have been with us through our nine years of continuous growth, those recently included in our list and those who will join us in the future, that we address this Report and express our greatest appreciation for this expression of your loyalty to the University and your esteem for the library.

Endowments

ROBERT WHITE SMARTT LIBRARY ENDOWMENT

With the establishment of the Robert White Smartt Library Endowment in late 1968, an eminent judge and an influential Tennessean has been memorialized.

Judge Smartt, ninety-five years of age at the time of his death and a life-long resident of Warren County, Tennessee, received his undergraduate degree from Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee, in 1897, the Law Degree in 1899, and an Honorary LL.D. from the same University in 1942. In more than sixty years of law practice he served as Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit for thirty-two years and for thirteen years thereafter as Special Judge throughout the state. His active interest in the Tennessee Bar Association was evidenced by the fact that in his many years of membership he was in attendance at all but two of the state meetings.

For almost seventy of his ninety-five years, Judge Smartt was an elder in the Presbyterian Church and for all of his years evidenced an abiding concern for people of all ages. Along with a general interest in all phases of education, he had a particular fondness for The University of Tennessee and was a loyal fan and follower of the Vols. This loyalty was not his only contribution to the University, however, for a son and a daughter have long been associated with its activities. From 1948 through June 1969, John M. Smartt served with distinction as Director of Alumni Affairs and Cornelia Smartt Hodges, the widow of John C. Hodges, long a professor of English at the University and a friend and benefactor of the library, has added her own touch of graciousness and charm to the University scene.

In establishing the Robert White Smartt Library Endowment, the donor has specified that the Law Library should benefit from its proceeds and has made known the fact that other contributions to the fund would be most welcome.

JUDGE ROBERT WHITE SMARTT

BILL WALLACE

THE BILL WALLACE OF CHINA LIBRARY ENDOWMENT FUND

The Bill Wallace of China Library Endowment Fund was ushered in with a dramatic flourish not ordinarily associated with the establishment of a library endowment fund. On the evening of October 3, 1968, under sweeping searchlights, those interested in Bill Wallace and in contributing to the fund being established in his memory, assembled at the Tennessee Theatre for the première performance of the movie, "Bill Wallace of China."

A brochure issued in connection with this performance comments briefly on Bill Wallace, the person and "Bill Wallace of China," the movie:

"Seventeen years ago Bill Wallace, medical missionary from Knoxville, died in a Communist prison in China.

"On October 3, his alma mater, The University of Tennessee, will launch a campaign to establish a library endowment fund for books in religion in his memory. The start of the campaign will coincide with the première showing of 'Bill Wallace of China,' a movie based on Wallace's life, at Knoxville's Tennessee Theatre. Proceeds from this première will go to the library endowment fund.

"Wallace was a pre-medical student on U.T.'s Knoxville campus in 1927-28 and received his M.D. degree at the University's Medical Units at Memphis in 1932. Two years later, Wallace left for Wuchow Baptist Hospital in China, where he served as medical missionary during 17 of the most turbulent years of the ancient kingdom's history.

"He became a martyr for Christ in the face of both the invading Japanese and the Red Chinese. In late 1950, the Communist Chinese arrested him as an 'American spy.' He died a year later in Wuchow prison.

"The movie is based on the Broadman Press best-seller by the same name, written by Jesse C. Fletcher, a friend of Wallace and now an official of the Southern Baptist Mission Board in Richmond, Va. Most of the movie was filmed in Hong Kong and reveals Wallace as he pioneers in hospital service among China's hordes of needy. In the film, Wallace is portrayed by Gregory Walcott, actor and producer who has played roles in the movies 'Mr. Roberts' and 'Battle Cry.' The feminine lead is played by Jo Helton, now a nurse in Knoxville who is taking graduate study at U.T."

Both Gregory Walcott and Miss Helton were present at the movie, as they had been at the dinner preceding the movie, to receive the plaudits of the audience and to make brief statements of their reasons for having made the movie and of the inspiration gained from having been a part of this portrayal of an unselfish life.

Credits were given at the dinner and again at the theatre to all those who had had a part in making the movie, in making possible its première performance in Knoxville, in establishing this fund, and in providing that it be named as a library endowment fund. Special credit should be given to Ralph W. Frost, U.T.'s genial manager of University Concerts and for many years General Secretary, University Christian Association, for conceiving the idea and specifying the fund for the library as well as to the University Development Office for coordinating the organization needed for the success of the campaign.

This fund has been established with an initial $7,289 realized from donations received in connection with the performance of the movie, the income from this amount to be spent for books in the field of religion. Also, and of particular interest to our Special Documents Committee and Special Collections Librarian, Mr. Walcott has made known his desire to give to the library all photographic records connected with making the film including all pictures made during the première festivities.

Memorial Book Funds

CLASS OF 1919

For many years the Class of 1919 has memorialized members of the class by presenting books to the University library. On the occasion of its 50th reunion, this class has made its gift to the University in the form of a book fund to continue the purchase of these memorial books as needed. From the 115 members of the class, contributions of more than $700.00 have been received and more will be added, for these persons will probably wish to specify some of their future Alumni Annual Giving contributions to The Class of 1919 Memorial Book Fund.

Much of the credit for creating and making a success of this fund must go to several members of the class. At the 35th reunion in 1954, donations were made for the purchase of a book as a memorial to Dr. Porter P. Claxton, at one time U. S. Commissioner of Education. This was the inception of the idea which was nurtured by Mrs. Helen Ashe Willard and Mrs. Margaret Welles Ragsdale who were elected chairman and secretary-treasurer of the class at this meeting. During the years following, as class members were to be memorialized, E. Howard Elam assumed the major responsibility for the selection of books related to the special interests of the deceased members.

In later years, under the leadership of Mrs. Katherine Moreland

Card as chairman and Mrs. Orrissa Paris Simpson as secretary-treasurer, the program flourished and, with the able direction of Mrs. Lola David Plummer, chairman of the 1969 fund-raising project, culminated in this unusual and generous book fund for the library.

In making such a gift to the University, the Class of 1919 has assured that each of the remaining class members will be memorialized and has set a precedent of creating a special fund which other groups or classes may wish to follow in establishing similar funds suited to their particular purpose.

Individuals Memorialized

During the year, as is not unusual, faculty deaths saddened the University community. On separate occasions colleagues and friends of Travis L. Hawk, Professor of Educational Psychology and Guidance, and Richard J. Xiques, Assistant Professor of Basic Engineering and Graphics, expressed their esteem for these faculty members by making a contribution for the purchase of books for the library.

The aggregate sum in memory of each of these professors provides the means for substantial purchases for the Education Library and the Engineering Library, each of the books purchased with the money to bear the appropriate bookplate for either Professor Hawk or Professor Xiques.

Notable Gifts

Books, Manuscripts and Portraits

MISS GENEVIEVE HUDSON

The library was fortunate to receive from Miss Genevieve Hudson, teacher and formerly Headmistress of Webb School, her personal library of approximately 130 books. Since these books had come to Miss Hudson through several generations and various members of her family, they represent a variety of interests and therefore a diversity of titles.

For instance, the English scholar will find an eight volume set of The Spectator published in Edinburgh circa 1800 and the 1823 London edition of The Percy Anecdotes in five volumes. Sir Joshua Reynolds' Complete Works of 1824 will appeal to those interested in art as well as in the literary essay. To a person searching for titles of a more general nature, there is available Eugene Violet-le-duc's The habitation of man in all ages, London, 1876 and the 1835 New York edition of Calvin Colton's Four years in Great Britain.

A personal touch, not often supplied by the donor, is the ability to bind books effectively and attractively. That Miss Hudson has included some of these books bound by hand, the results of a youthful hobby, lends a pleasant individuality to this gift.

PAUL C. AVERY

Paul C. Avery, a U.T. alumnus and resident of Orlando, Florida, who, in remembering certain of his favorite professors has made substantial financial contributions in their honor or memory, has brought to the library his collection of approximately 300 books.

Even though his primary interest is entomology and the life sciences related to this subject—the science section of the collection includes a variety of books on natural history, biology, zoology, the earth sciences and is filled out by a sizable accumulation of books about birds—the collection reveals a wide range of other interests: many of the books concern religion, Christianity and Judaism particularly, and the psychology of religion; a small section relates to music; another is made up of specialized dictionaries and encyclopedias; still another, perhaps more extensive, deals with psychology and human relations. One has the impression that this collection is not only a reflection of Mr. Avery's interests but that the books have been used as acquired to satisfy a wide-ranging curiosity and interest in the world about him.

For the most part the books are up-to-date and useful to today's graduate and undergraduate. They have made a substantial contribution to our collections that serve these students.

E. C. WIESEHUGAL

To a program recently established as a part of the University curriculum, a pertinent gift of books can be most welcome. Such a gift came to the Agriculture Library from E. C. Wiesebugal of Norris, for many years connected with the Forestry Division of Tennessee Valley Authority. This fine collection of books, journals, and pamphlets on the subject of forestry provides a nucleus of materials for the recently established Forestry Department and serves as an excellent example of the importance of a specialized collection being acquired by a library.

These materials have been assembled as they have become available, weeded out as they have become extraneous. A library attempting now to gather these titles individually would experience great difficulty in locating the items and would expend much time and money in acquiring them.

OTHER BOOK CONTRIBUTORS

To all those persons who have remembered the library in disposing of their gifts, we are most grateful. Only limitations of space prevent our listing the names of each of these individually, but several deserve special comment:

The Frantz, McConnell and Seymour Law Firm and Earl S. Ailor of the Knoxville Bar have been benefactors of the Law Library during this period with substantial gifts. Since it is not unusual for law firms and members of the Bar to give collections from their offices, some of our sets of law titles have been acquired in this way, many second copies, replacements, and missing volumes have been added from these gifts.

Another type of substantial gift which, occasionally, we are fortunate to receive, is the complete file or long run of an important journal. These files may serve as additional copies in our collection, as copies for a branch library or they may be needed by another unit in the University state-wide system. One such gift, American Economic Review, covering the thirty-year period from 1937 through 1967 came from Rudolf F. Bertram, recently retired from the Personnel Office of Tennessee Valley Authority.

Faculty members, also, have been generous: Professor James

W. Bennett, Jr., Head of the Marketing and Transportation Department in the College of Business Administration, donated a considerable collection of books and journals; Dr. Brooks D. Drain, Emeritus Horticulturist, Agricultural Experiment Station, gave his personal library of books and journals consisting primarily of horticulture materials, the most important segment being a substantial file of the American Society of Horticultural Sciences, Proceedings; Dr. Lorna J. Gassett, Head of the Home Economics Home Management program sent to the library a sizable collection of books which had served as recreational reading for the girls who had their training in the Home Management House; and the widows of Professors Quill E. Cope and Travis L. Hawk, both members of the College of Education staff, gave the professional libraries of their late husbands.

GIFTS TO SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

One of the important features of the library is our Special Collections area. In addition to many books and some journals, this division houses the documents, manuscripts, letters, scrapbooks, photographs, and other non-book materials of great importance to scholars in their search for undisclosed information. Since these materials, for the most part, have never appeared elsewhere or are of value because of being a unique collection, we welcome the family records, the letters, diaries, manuscripts, etc., which, reposing in our files, will bring scholars to our doors.

Fawcett Papers

One such collection, recently acquired, is the Papers, 1858-1903 of Owen Fawcett, actor and comedian of Detroit, Michigan, who was actively engaged in theatrical companies, first in stock, later in touring companies, during these fifty years. Much has been written, more has been said about the "star" of stage and screen but seldom has the supporting actor been the subject of a biography or had the opportunity or persistence to maintain a record of an acting career and of theatrical companies over so many years.

The Fawcett Papers consist of "Correspondence, 44 diaries kept daily by Fawcett commenting on his activities and engagements in the U.S. and Great Britain, scrapbooks of newspaper and magazine clippings concerning his career and careers of other prominent actors and actresses, plays adapted by Fawcett, an incomplete MS. of his personal recollections, and photos. Persons represented include Lawrence Barrett, Edwin Booth, John Wilkes Booth, Minna K. Gale, and Mme. Modjeska."¹

Mrs. Sarah Brown McNiell, graduate student in history, working with the Fawcett Collection.

One method of gauging the importance of such collections is the use made of them. These Papers are being used now as source material for a Ph.D. dissertation being written by a graduate student in history. Owen Fawcett, the man and his time, interpreted through his diaries, scrapbooks, letters, etc., will reflect the cultural and social history of the United States during the last half of the nineteenth century while portraying a close-up picture of the actors, travels and trappings of the theatrical world during these years.

Mrs. Owen Fawcett Uridge, Sr., wife of the grandson of Owen Fawcett, the actor, is the donor to whom we are indebted for this gift.

ANDREW JACKSON — CIRCA 1833

RACHEL JACKSON — CIRCA 1820

Jackson Portraits

Among our most treasured non-book materials are the portraits we own—photographs and paintings of persons who have proven themselves illustrious in the course of Tennessee history. The most distinguished of these, perhaps, are the portraits of Andrew and Rachel Jackson which have come to the University through the generosity of a Washington, D.C., art collector, Frederick Maloof, and have been given in memory of Estes and Nancy Kefauver.

These oil portraits, until now virtually unknown, afford slight information concerning the artist, time and circumstances of portraiture. The likeness of Jackson which portrays the President with patrician features and thoughtful mien, is thought to have been painted around 1833, but bears no clue as to the identity of the artist. There is more information about the artist of the other subject, however, for the softly feminine, pensive portrayal of Rachel Jackson bears the signature "Collas." Little is known about the artist, Louis A. Collas, except that he painted miniatures as well as larger portraits of superior quality and is known to have been in the vicinity of New Orleans during the years 1820-1828.² The time of this painting of Rachel Jackson has been established as around 1820.

Significantly enough the portraits hang in the Estes Kefauver wing of the library and add a touch of charm and mellowness to this room as their subjects, with the air of detachment that comes with age, gaze down upon the busy world of scholarship unfolding beneath them.

Some of the other more unusual items received as gifts during this year are:

Braden, Carl. Papers of Carl and Anne Braden, 1947-1967. ca. 4,700 pieces (9 ft.). Correspondence of the SCEF civil rights workers, 1947-1967; newspaper clippings, 1947-1967; court records, 1954 & 1959; some SCEF financial records; address cards; and tape recordings.

McCulley Plantation, Huntsville, Ala. Account books, 1840-1870. 10v. Handwritten. Gift of Dr. Ira Chiles.

Radiation biology archives. ca. 2,500 pieces. A growing collection being assembled by Dr. Alexander Hollaender of Oak Ridge (with the encouragement of the Division of Biology and Medicine of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission).

Smoky Mountain Railroad. Papers. 1938-1963. ca. 4,500 items (7½ ft.). Correspondence of the Smoky Mountain Railroad, 1938-1963; business records, 1938-1963; ledgers, 1909-1919 and 1925; record book, 1962; and cashbook, 1944-1945. Gift of William Robert Rogers who collected this material while working on a master's thesis and presented to the library at completion.

Wiley, Edwin Floyd, 1839-1919. War memoirs, 1861-1865. 125 l. Handwritten. 29 cm. Experiences as a captain in the Union Army. Photograph of author included. Gift of Misses May and Eleanor Wiley.
