University of Tennessee

KNOXVILLE

For Men and Women.

The location of the college, on the banks of the Tennessee river, and in sight of the "Big Smokies," is unsurpassed.

No institution in the South offers better facilities for women, since they are given the same opportunities here that are accorded the men.

~~A new building for the accommodation of the women students is being erected on the grounds and will be ready for occupancy by about the opening of the third term, March 28, 1900. This building will be provided with ample dormitory rooms, supplied with all modern conveniences, dining hall and all necessary society halls, parlors, and rooms for general purposes. Pending its erection, a boarding hall on the grounds has been fitted up for the women students, and arrangements are made for all students from a distance.~~

~~An~~ Unequaled course of study,

A healthful location,

Special care and home comforts,

Sanitary arrangements,

Pure water,

Electric lights

render this University most desirable for those women of the South who are seeking the advantages of higher education.
