It appears that there's not enough information being gathered about black students themselves -- more than just attitudes. Do we feel a <sup>sense of</sup> community amongst ourselves? Do we pretend we're a together community? Do we regret or want to be less community oriented? What are our goals? Do we intend go our way when we're finished with school? Do we intend to serve the community? Do we intend to get rich off the community -- the name of service? Do we need a survey? This survey? Are we over concerned with our "problems"? Do we project prejudices? Do we want to come to task with the more substantive (basic) problems of mankind?
