

Volume 39
Issue 2 Spring 2010

Contributors

Barbara Thayer-Bacon
University of Tennessee, Knoxville, utktrace@gmail.com

Follow this and additional works at: <https://trace.tennessee.edu/internationaleducation>

Copyright © 2010 by the University of Tennessee. Reproduced with publisher's permission.

Further reproduction of this article in violation of the copyright is prohibited.

<https://trace.tennessee.edu/internationaleducation/vol39/iss2/7>

Recommended Citation

Thayer-Bacon, Barbara (2010). Contributors. International Education, Vol. 39 Issue (2).

Retrieved from: <https://trace.tennessee.edu/internationaleducation/vol39/iss2/7>

This Contributors is brought to you for free and open access by TRACE: Tennessee Research and Creative Exchange. It has been accepted for inclusion in International Education by an authorized editor of TRACE: Tennessee Research and Creative Exchange. For more information, please contact trace@utk.edu.

CONTRIBUTORS

Aziz Choudry holds a Ph.D. from Concordia University. He is assistant professor of international education, in the department of Integrated Studies in Education at McGill University. A longtime social justice activist, researcher and educator, he is the co-author of Fight Back: Workplace Justice for Immigrants (Halifax: Fernwood, 2009). His email address is aziz.choudry@mcgill.ca.

A'ame Kone is a master's degree candidate in Cross-cultural and International Education at Bowling Green State University. She is currently working on two research projects in Mali. Her research interests include indigenous knowledge, informal education, and gender roles. Her email address is akone@bgsu.edu.

C. June Maker is professor in the department of Disability and Psychoeducational Studies at the University of Arizona, where she teaches and directs a project to prepare professors in special education, education of the gifted, and early childhood education. She has conducted research on performance-based assessments, implementation of multiple intelligences theory, and creativity development. She is an internationally known researcher and keynote speaker. The website for her major project, DISCOVER, is www.discover.arizona.edu, and she can be reached via email at junemaker@hotmail.com.

Maike Ingrid Philipsen is professor in the department of Foundations of Education at Virginia Commonwealth University. She received her Ph.D. in Social Foundations at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and previously earned her Master's degree in Political Science at the Free University of Berlin. Her research interests span the social foundations of education, including issues of social justice and equality in education, specifically the roles of race, gender, and social class in shaping schools and institutions of higher learning. She studies questions relating to equal opportunities at both the K-12 and college/university levels, employing primarily a sociological perspective and qualitative methodologies. Her e-mail address is miphilip@vcu.edu.

Ketty M. Sarouphim is Associate Professor of Psychology and Education at the Lebanese American University, Department of Social Sciences. She has a Ph.D. in Educational Psychology from the University of Arizona. The focus of her research is on identifying gifted students from culturally diverse groups, particularly through the use of alternative assessment. She has presented her work at international conferences and has several published articles in international academic journals. Dr. Sarouphim has had many TV appearances in which she has discussed various topics related to children, with an emphasis on effective parenting techniques. She has also given several workshops to teachers and parents on a variety of topics, such as preventing aggression in children and the effect of parenting styles on children's behavior and well-being. Her email address is ksarufim@lau.edu.lb.

Adnan Selimovic earned an M.A. in Social and Political Thought at York University, where he is pursuing a Ph.D. in the same program. His research interests have related to the post-conflict Balkan societies and the status of youth. More specifically, he focuses on psychoanalytic critiques of early childhood education and socialization practices, possible political utilities of psychotherapy, intergenerational psychosocial effect of war trauma, and the alternatives of communal ideas of sustainable intersubjective democratic practices. His email address is adnan.selimovic@gmail.com.