1-2022

A Special Thanks to Distinguished Supporters

Ashley A. Humphrey
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Follow this and additional works at: <https://trace.tennessee.edu/ijns>

Recommended Citation

Humphrey, Ashley A. (2022) "A Special Thanks to Distinguished Supporters," International Journal of Nuclear Security. Vol. 7: No. 2, Article 4.

<https://doi.org/10.7290/ijns072a97>

Available at: <https://trace.tennessee.edu/ijns/vol7/iss2/4>

This article is brought to you freely and openly by Volunteer, Open-access, Library-hosted Journals (VOL Journals), published in partnership with The University of Tennessee (UT) University Libraries. This article has been accepted for inclusion in International Journal of Nuclear Security by an authorized editor. For more information, please visit <https://trace.tennessee.edu/ijns>.

A Special Thanks to Distinguished Supporters

Photo credit: Dean Calma/IAEA, INSEN Annual Meeting 2019 Presentation announcing special issue by Dr. Russel Hirst (left), supported by Rhonda Evans (middle) and Oum Keltoum Hakam (right).

Rhonda Evans, Head of Program Development at World Institute for Nuclear Security (WINS), and Oum Keltoum Hakam, Education Officer at International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), have been key supporters of this special issue from the beginning. Along with Danielle Dahlstrom, they both started out as guest editors. They supplied a list of reviewers for this issue and bolstered its importance to some of the most notable professionals in the sector. Despite not having to do any of the editorial work in the journal (thanks to timing, professional responsibilities, and the pandemic), their contribution and continued support deserves a special thanks.

Their character and devotion to nuclear security is second only to their relentless drive for gender equality in the field. Working with these women has been an honor and I look forward to future collaborations.

I would also like to thank Dr. Russel Hirst. Without his leadership and networking, we would not have the many opportunities or skills he provides to his students, alum, and associates. Many thanks to the IJNS Davis Editor, Rachel Brooks—she makes me a better editor and none of this would be possible without her leadership and passion for the journal.

To all other collaborators, organizations, and individuals who see the value of our journal and invest their time in building our network and validity, we thank you too. It takes all of us, and I am honored to work with each of you.

Best Always,

Ashley