CRC: A launching point for career planning

The Office of Human Resources Management has established a Career Resource Center (CRC) to assist University staff with their career planning and development. The focus of the CRC is to encourage individuals to take responsibility for managing their own careers in the constantly changing work environment.

"The University provides a wealth of opportunities and resources to assist UT staff in their career planning and development. The CRC serves as a launching point to help individuals identify and locate these resources both on campus as well as in the Knoxville area," said CRC manager Gail Cope.

The CRC, located in suite 220 of the UT Conference Center on Henley Street, provides information and guidance on many aspects of the career planning process. For example, self-assessment lays the foundation for career planning and enables individuals to discover (and rediscover) their unique talents, skills, interests and motivations, Cope said. Self-assessment activities may be conducted individually or through the "Career Planning Series" and other workshops offered through OHRM's Training and Career Development unit.

Exploration of careers and occupations is another key area in career planning. The CRC serves as a clearing-house in providing University-specific information on jobs, training and development activities, educational opportunities and other campus and community resources.

The CRC library offers books and publications for use at the Center or for loan to University staff. Recent additions include: Finding Your Perfect Work, If You Knew Who You Were, You Could Be Who You Are!, Second Careers: New Ways to Work After 50, Using the Internet in Your Job Search, and Zen and the Art of Making a Living.

Budget and mission are primary concerns

First woman dean to head Arts and Sciences

Balancing budgets while maintaining the mission of the College of Arts and Sciences is of primary concern to the college's new dean, Dr. Lorayne Lester. More than 27 academic departments and more than a dozen interdisciplinary programs, in addition to institutes and centers, are under her management. She is the college's first woman dean.

Announcing her appointment, Vice Chancellor John Peters said, "Lorayne Lester is an administrator of great experience and quality. She will bring excellent leadership to the College of Arts and Sciences."

A UT faculty member since 1960, Lester is a professor of speech communication. She served as associate dean of Arts and Sciences for six years before her appointment as interim dean in the spring of 1996.

"I have the advantage of a long oversight of the college and of knowing large numbers of faculty," she said. "I have been at the university all of my academic life. Those are large and valuable advantages as we face troublesome times in the university's history," she said.

Lester earned bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from UTK. She was head of the Department of Speech Communication prior to her appointment as associate dean. She has been active in the Tennessee and Southeastern Theater Conferences and was named 1987 Communicator of the Year by the Tennessee Speech Communication Association.

Lester said she will concentrate on helping the college provide high-quality graduate and undergraduate programs, sustaining research, and promoting service to the community.

Good News!

Eight of the 13 top students who graduated Fall Semester, 1996, were women.

Dr. Linda Maxson, associate vice chancellor for academic affairs, was chosen for "Who's Who of American Women."

Dr. Mary Albrecht was appointed head of the Department of Ornamental Horticulture and Landscape Design.

Sara Phillips, UT assistant vice president for personnel services, accepted an Honored Organization Award from the National Academy of Human Resources, on behalf of the College and University Personnel Association (CUPA). Phillips is president-elect of CUPA.

Outstanding women sought for awards

Recognizing the accomplishments of UTK faculty, staff and students is an important function of the Commission for Women. Nominations are being sought for two important awards.

The Angie Warren Perkins Award recognizes women who have made significant contributions to University governance/administration. The Women of Achievement Award goes to women faculty, staff and students for extraordinary accomplishments that significantly improved the status of women at UTK.

CFW encourages all faculty, staff and students to take a moment to fill out the enclosed nomination forms and return them by February 14. Awards are presented each spring at the Chancellor's Honors Banquet.
Climate for Women Study under way

CFW is studying the climate for UTK women as projected through images and activities encountered in everyday life on campus. We particularly are interested in collecting examples of how women are negatively portrayed or excluded. You can make important contributions to this study by sending any examples which you notice to:

Dr. Susan Martin, Classics Department, 710 McClung Tower 0471.

Speak your mind on WmnSpeak listserve

The Commission for Women has set up a listserv to provide a campus forum for discussion of issues affecting the status of UTK women faculty, staff and students. Any member of the University with an e-mail account may subscribe by sending an e-mail to LISTSERV@UTKVML.UTK.EDU with the following message:

SUBSCRIBE WMNSPEAK (give your full name).

Speakers on women's issues and capital punishment slated for Women's History Month

March is Women's History Month, and UTK will be host to two important speakers.

On March 3 Sister Helen Prejean, author of Dead Man Walking, will speak on the topic "Capital Punishment: Is Justice Truly Being Served?"

"Women's Issues Today and in the 21st Century" will be presented on March 18 by Faye Wattleton, past president of Planned Parenthood Federation of America, Inc.

Both talks will be held in the University Center Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. For more information about upcoming events, contact the Women's Center at 974-1029.

March conference to focus balancing act of home, career, self

If you are looking for some solid career guidance and a big boost to your morale and self esteem, the 1997 Women's Professional Development Conference will provide you with a jump-start into spring.

Slated for March 18 at the UT Conference Center, the conference is structured to provide information for female professionals at UTK and the East Tennessee community. Everyone is welcome.

"More importantly, the conference aims to inspire, motivate and empower women to become self-directed learners," says Conference Coordinator Shelley Riley. "The conference sessions focus on issues that continue to concern women, and our goal is for each conference to leave with information that can be used for continued personal and professional growth as well as self empowerment."

From the Chair

I am very honored to serve as the chair of the UTK Commission for Women this year and hope to continue the momentum established under Norma Cook's fine leadership. Having participated in two meetings, I am impressed by the energy and commitment of the members to forwarding all aspects of the Commission's mission.

As this issue of the Networker illustrates, the standing and special committees of the commission are hard at work assessing, evaluating, and making recommendations concerning programs, policies and services that concern the status of women at UTK.

We are also very proud to sponsor awards and recognitions that highlight the contribution of many extraordinary women to the life of this campus. I look forward to a productive Spring Semester.

Dr. Susan D. Martin, is associate professor and head of the Classics Department. She teaches a women in antiquities class and specializes in Roman law at UTK.

...on the international scene

Dr. Marla Peterson, a UTK education professor, is helping Russia develop its first electronic school counselor program. Computer technology is transforming the way school counselors are being trained, she said, allowing them access to electronic career and education planning. UTK developed the nation's first career and educational information systems course.

...partners with business

Dr. Jan Allen, UTK associate professor of Child and Family Studies, is working with Levi Strauss & Co. to help improve services at 20 providers who care for children of Levi Strauss employees. UT's Knoxville Area Child Care Information and Referral Service helps providers identify strengths and weaknesses in curriculum, classroom management, learning, child behavior and other areas. The service provides information and training for families, corporations and child-care providers in 13 surrounding counties.

CFW committees at a glance

Communications Committee

The establishment of a homepage and listserve top the recent accomplishments of the Communications Committee. Work will continue to refine these two products to help facilitate communications between UTK women faculty, staff and students.

Equity Issues Committee

Three areas of focus for this year will be: gender issues related to further budget reductions; equity issues related to part-time employees; and equity issues related to Conference Center parking. The committee will work with the Committee on Part-time Employees regarding mutual concerns.

Safety Committee

The committee attended the SGA and GSA's Safety Walk in November. It was noted that more Blue Light Emergency Telephones have been installed at the following locations: money wall at the UC; south parking lot at Sutherland Apartments; northeast corner of Walters Life Sciences Building; southeast corner of Volunteer Blvd. and Pat Head Summit Street; west end of Tom Black Track, north area of McClung Plaza; White Avenue Garage (one unit outside each elevator lobby); N-2 parking lot (corner of Volunteer Blvd. and Caledonia Avenue); and Laurel Apartments Garage (stairwell area on the middle level of the garage). Two more phones are to be installed on the Agriculture Campus at the entrance to the Ag-Vet Library and the west entrance to the Animal Science Building.

Work and Family Committee

Formerly known as the Child Care Committee, the name has been changed to the Work and Family Committee to better reflect the purpose of the committee, which is to promote the individual's ability to balance competing demands posed by job and family. The three primary targets are child care, elder care, and family members with disabilities.

Visibility Committee

The committee has recommended that CFW continue sending the CFW brochure to new female employees, along with a letter from the CFW chair; invite women to attend an open forum to address concerns; and contact departments on campus to talk about CFW during a staff meeting.

Legislative/Legal Issues

Legal issues including the status of women and Affirmative Action will be the focus of this new committee.

Career Development Committee

Advancing career development opportunities through the Networker, CFW homepage and the new CFW listserve is this new group's mission.
