Supply Chain Management is currently a concentration within the Master of Business Administration degree offered by the Haslam College of Business. The College is seeking approval from the Tennessee Higher Education Commission (THEC) to offer it as a stand-alone Master of Science (no longer a concentration within the MBA). Hence, we do not consider it a substantive change since the course work and faculty expertise already exist. This program meets the minimum 30 semester credit hour requirement and more than 50% of the total hours required for this master's degree will be completed at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. The proposal for the new Master of Science in Supply Chain Management will be considered by our Graduate Council in January 2017 and go before our Board of Trustees at their March 2017 meeting before being transmitted to THEC for their authorization. We do not anticipate any difficulty with any of these approvals as all bodies have been kept informed during the development process.

This change will go into effect with the 2017-2018 academic year (August 23, 2017 classes begin).

Sincerely,

Mary Lewnes Albrecht, PhD
Associate Vice Provost for Accreditation and SACS COC Liaison
