A MARK OF A GREAT UNIVERSITY IS AN EXCELLENT LIBRARY

Gifts of $23,766.77 in cash and 8,955 books, plus manuscripts and other library materials, have been received from 1,433 individuals and organizations in response to the campaign conducted by The University of Tennessee’s Library Development Program as of December 31, 1960. All these gifts are acknowledged in this first report issued by sponsors of the program.

The Library Development Program was officially launched on October 3, 1959, by action of the U-T Development Council and the U-T Alumni Council in their separate annual business meetings. The needs of the Library had been called to the attention of both councils by President Andrew D. Holt.

Previously, an interest in soliciting gifts for the Library had been generated by a spontaneous movement in which friends of the late Dr. Arthur L. Pollard contributed $2,000 to memorialize the former U-T faculty member through the purchase of library books covering all phases of conservation. Dr. John C. Hodges, Head of the U-T Department of English, volunteered his assistance in further library development, and he became the chief spokesman for the cause.

The goal of the Library Development Program is to give the University a library which ranks with the best. The University’s collections at Knoxville, Memphis, Martin, and Nashville at present total around 633,000 volumes. It is hoped that this number can be increased to one million volumes within the next few years. The Library’s regular sources of income must be supplemented with substantial gifts and grants to make such growth possible.

Because of the magnitude of the project, sponsors of the Library Development Program recognize that it must be a continuing effort, lasting over a period of years. At its annual meeting during the fall of 1960, the Development Council voted to make the program

Hodges, Head of the U-T Department of English, volunteered his assistance in further library development, and he became the chief spokesman for the cause.

The goal of the Library Development Program is to give the University a library which ranks with the best. The University's collections at Knoxville, Memphis, Martin, and Nashville at present total around 633,000 volumes. It is hoped that this number can be increased to one million volumes within the next few years. The Library's regular sources of income must be supplemented with substantial gifts and grants to make such growth possible.

Because of the magnitude of the project, sponsors of the Library Development Program recognize that it must be a continuing effort, lasting over a period of years. At its annual meeting during the fall of 1960, the Development Council voted to make the program a long-range project. The Alumni Association took similar action, setting an unprecedented annual budget of $150,000, earmarking part of this sum for library books.

The scope of the University Libraries is state-wide. In Knoxville, the recently expanded James D. Hoskins Library building is the 'Main Library,' where all books for Knoxville are acquired and processed before being sent to the Undergraduate Library, the Reference Department, Special Collections, the general collection for graduate and research work, or to one of the specialized libraries housed in other buildings (Law, Agriculture, Education, Engineering, Biological Sciences, Science, and Business Administration).

In Martin, the College Library serves all departments; in Memphis, the Mooney Memorial Library provides service to the Medical Units. For the School of Social Work, a special library is being developed in Nashville. The various Extension Centers in the State need library resources.

In Knoxville, the new Undergraduate Library, developed to serve thousands of undergraduates more effectively, provides comfortable, attractive study space and new, inviting books on open shelves. The shelves, however, are only about one-third filled, and to fill these shelves a total of at least $40,000, over and above the regularly appropriated funds, will be required during the next four years. Much of the gift money received from the Library Development Program has been used to purchase Undergraduate Library books.

The Special Collections Room, also a new service since the expansion of the Main Library, provides the first proper housing for the University's rare books, manuscripts, historical documents, and other source materials.

Types of Gifts Made

1 GIFTS OF CASH FOR THE PURCHASE OF BOOKS

Cash gifts are urgently needed by the Library to purchase additional books required to "fill the gaps" in its present collection.

A total of 1015 individuals and organizations made gifts of cash to the Library during 1960. Those giving were divided into three groups as follows:

- LIBRARY PATRONS — 10 individuals and organizations giving $1,000 or more.
- LIBRARY DONORS — 27 individuals and organizations giving from $100 to $1,000.
- LIBRARY CONTRIBUTORS — 978 individuals and organizations giving up to $100.

2 GIFTS OF CASH TO ESTABLISH ENDOWMENT FUNDS

Endowment funds are the best possible means of helping the long-range development of the Library. They provide permanent sources of income for the purchase of books. Such funds are invested, with the annual income used to enlarge the Library collection.

Two individuals and organizations established endowment funds in 1960.

3 GIFTS OF BOOKS AND OTHER LIBRARY MATERIALS

The Library also welcomes gifts of books from private library collections, manuscripts, and other library materials which have educational or historical value. These gifts can help immensely in building up the Library's collection.

A total of 461 individuals and organizations made gifts of books and other library materials during 1960.

4 GIFTS MADE TO ESTABLISH MEMORIALS

Gifts to the Library serve a dual purpose when given as memorials. Not only do they contribute to the education of future generations, they also perpetuate the memory of a loved one or a friend. Special bookplates are placed in all books given as memorials. Similarly, library gifts may be used to honor individuals still living.

A total of 68 individuals were honored or memorialized by gifts of books and cash to purchase books during 1960.

Endowment Funds

Two endowments have been established, and plans made for a third, since the Library Development Program began.

The Home Economics Library Endowment is designed to build, over a five-year period, a fund of $10,000 which will supply income to purchase library materials for home economics research at the graduate level. Miss Jessie W. Harris, Dean Emerita, is chairman of the committee selected by the Home Economics alumnae. On December 31, $1,085 in cash and $2,335 in pledges had been received. Of significance in this program is the fact that high school students are participating in library development, helping to buy books and journals they will someday use.

Mr. H. S. "Hub" Walters, a member of the Development Council when the Library Development Program began, and Mrs. Walters have set up an endowment in memory of Mr. Walters' parents, the Reverend John M. Walters and Lula Franklin Walters.

The third endowment, just now starting, will memorialize Miss Mamie C. Johnston, who for many years was a beloved teacher of English at U-T. See the following page for details of this new endowment.

Although all endowments are not memorials, an endowment is a particularly effective method of expressing love and esteem for a relative, friend, or colleague. The Library is today buying books every year from memorial endowments established forty or more years ago.

Miss Johnston's last picture, taken at age 81.

Were you one of five thousand students who studied English under Miss Mamie C. Johnston at U-T between 1919 and 1949? If so, you may wish to join in setting up an endowment in her honor.

This memorial, being launched with the publication of this annual report, has already received pledges amounting to two thousand dollars. The Better English Fund, bidding to become the first PATRON for 1961, will lead off with a thousand, and an individual who knew Miss Mamie in the twenties wishes to give the second thousand. Her students and friends may participate in this tribute by sending their checks, in any amount, to William H. Jesse, Director of Libraries, in Knoxville.

THE MAMIE C. JOHNSTON LIBRARY ENDOWMENT

I enclose my check (payable to Univ. of Tenn. Library) for $___ to be used to buy library books in memory of Miss Mamie C. Johnston.

Gifts of Books and Other Library Materials

Four hundred and sixty-one people have contributed 8,955 books, plus manuscripts, and special materials to the Library during the past fifteen months. The Walter Woodburn Hyde gift, 1,450 volumes valued at not less than $10,000, is the largest, but extensive collections have also been given by Mrs. William G. Cottrell, Mrs. William Way, and Mrs. T. L. Howard — honoring the late William G. Cottrell, William Way, and T. L. Howard, respectively; William P. Hoskins, who gave his father’s private library and scrapbooks, clippings, programs, and collections of materials pertaining to the University; Jesse D. Levy; John S. Van Gilder; J. B. Summers; Mrs. Hugo J. Wichmann and Kingston Lisle; Miss Beatrice Prall; and James O. Swain.

Many books have been given as memorials, as have some manuscripts and special materials.

Dr. Walter Woodburn Hyde, authority on the classics, presented his personal library to The University of Tennessee, including Cicero’s De Officiis, printed in Venice in 1481, and two other examples of early printing.

A second incunabulum received during the year was the Biblia Sacra, a Bible given by Warren A. Perkins ’18 in memory of his father, Dr. Charles A. Perkins, former U-T teacher of physics and engineering.

Mrs. St. George Stoussat, Washington, D.C., presented to Special Collections the materials which her late husband had gathered for a biography of Andrew Johnson. This valuable collection consists of notes, correspondence, photostats of Johnson documents, and related Tennessee materials.

From Mrs. James H. Burke, Knoxville, came about 250 papers, journals, photographs, manuscripts, and family and personal correspondence relative to Will Allen Dromgoole, Tennessee writer and late literary editor of The Nashville Banner. This collection is a memorial to Mrs. Burke’s mother, Maude Mooney Turpin.

Joseph Wood Krutch ’15 has given the University two typescripts of his latest book, Human Nature and the Human Condition. These two drafts exhibit interesting stylistic changes and emendations, and illustrate the painstaking polishing and revising of a master craftsman, as do the manuscripts of Rider on the Bronze Horse and Rogues’ Company presented by the author, Harry Harrison Kroll.

Eleven letters from literary figures — among them Dorothy Sayers, Eudora Welty, and Robert Penn Warren — were given by Dr. Robert W. Daniel, former member of the U-T English Department.

These gifts, only a few of those received during the past fifteen months, are examples of the type of “special collection” material wanted and solicited. Besides old and rare materials, anything which contributes to the scholar’s knowledge of the past, its history, customs, or manners, is valuable.

Memorials Established

The presentation of memorial volumes to provide lasting and useful tributes to friends or relatives has become the most popular manner of contributing to the Library Development Program. Special book plates carry the names of both donor and honoree; notification of the memorial is always made to the appropriate person; and each gift is acknowledged to the giver.

Honor has been paid to five living people and 68 memorials have been established, with 706 people participating. Of these, 560 contributed to the Alumni Association’s memorial to James D. Hoskins.

Some Books and Periodicals Still Needed

Some books, neither rare nor expensive, which the Library needs and is searching for, are out of print and difficult, sometimes impossible, to locate through regular book-buying channels. This is especially true of periodicals, where lack of a single issue may cause the loss of an entire volume. The following list of representative desiderata shows both books and periodicals which are needed by the James D. Hoskins Library at Knoxville.

Abraham, Gerald. This Modern Music. Norton, 1952
Beaton, Cecil. Ballet, Dance, 1951
Bell, Audrey F. C. Portuguese Portraits. Blackwell, 1937
Berliner, Herbert. The Life of Heinrich Hertz. Tr. by Katherine F. Boutil. Norton, 1897
Calder, Peter B. Men Against the Deserter, Allen, 1952
Caldwell, Charles W., Jr. Modern Single Wing Football. Lipsocott, 1951
Case, Shirley J. The Christian Philosophy of History. Chicago, 1943
Cecil, David. Reading as One of the Fine Arts. Clarinwood, 1949
Celas, Camilo J. Pascual Duarte's Family. Tr. by John Marks. Eyre, 1946
Clark, Graham. From Savagery to Civilization. Abelard, 1933
Clarke, Agnes M. The Brothers and Modern Astronomy. Cassell, 1901
Cranston, Austin. Poetry in Modern Ireland, O. Loughlan, 1951
Cohan, Abraham. The Teachings of映amashis. Macmillan, 1927
Cromer, James G. and Whiddington, R. Science at War. Philosophical Library, 1944
Emeneau, William J. Crevets, Clarendon, 1940
Erickson, John. Leading American Novelists. Holt, 1910
Faulkner, Jean E. Insect Life: Sociometry of a Naturalist. Macmillan, 1913

An Invitation to Visit Your Library

If you have contributed a book or (even more important) money to buy a book for the Library, you have a special part in it. In any case, it is your Library, and the staff would welcome the opportunity to show you the collections, whether at Knoxville, Martin, or Memphis.

Dr. John C. Hodges, Head of the University’s English Department, is officially the Program Coordinator for Library Development, though he says he is just “a book beggar for the Library.” He is never too busy to escort interested persons on a tour of the James D. Hoskins Library, or to arrange for a staff member to do so. You are invited to make an appointment with him by calling his study, telephone number 588-2337, or the Library, telephone number 524-2981, extension 226; or to come directly to the Library and inquire of Mr. William H. Jesse, Mr. G. M. Abel, or Mr. John Dobson.

Dr. Hodges is keenly interested in the Library because he believes it second in importance at the University only to a fine student body and a distinguished teaching and research staff, and that at this period in the history of our University, the development of the Library is vitally necessary.

We already have a very fine collection, well selected by the hundreds of specialists on the University staff and bought with generous yearly appropriations by the State. But such funds are exhausted long before the end of each year. Our Library needs—as all great libraries have needed, and received—help from outside sources to supplement the regular income. With the support of alumni and friends, the University can make its great Library a truly excellent one. We hope you will plan now to be a patron, a donor, or a contributor during 1961.

The Library needs PRINTED VOLUMES on almost any subject. It also needs OTHER MATERIALS—letters, diaries, manuscripts, documents, maps, journals.

Gifts of books may be sent, with an accompanying letter or note, to the Director of Libraries, The University of Tennessee, Knoxville. If the gift is a sizable collection, you may wish to speak or correspond with the Director regarding shipping arrangements.

The Library needs cash for the immediate purchase of books. Those who give $1,000 or more are LIBRARY PATRONS; $100 to $1,000, LIBRARY DONORS; up to $100, LIBRARY CONTRIBUTORS. Cash gifts should be made payable to the University of Tennessee Library and sent to William H. Jesse, Director of Libraries, Knoxville 16.

Have you remembered the University Library in your will? For books, you need only to have a signed codicil in your own handwriting: “I leave my books (or, if you prefer, ‘whatever books my heirs do not wish to keep’) to the University of Tennessee Library.” Any specific sum of money for the purchase of books may be designated in a will or in a codicil to a will.

Have you considered providing in your will for a library endowment, either in your name as donor or as a memorial?

For other information regarding endowments, please write Professor John C. Baugh, Legal Counsel at The University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

All gifts to the Library Development Program are tax deductible.

Form of Bequest

I give, devise, and bequeath to The Trustees of The University of Tennessee, at Knoxville, Tennessee, ______ (insert sum of money or description of property) which sum (or property or proceeds thereof) shall be used as an endowment to be known as the ______ Endowment, with the income accruing therefrom to be used for the purchase of books and materials for the Library.

HOW YOU MAY HELP

1. GIVING BOOKS
Gifts of books may be sent, with an accompanying letter or note, to the Director of Libraries, The University of Tennessee, Knoxville. If the gift is a sizable collection, you may wish to call or correspond with the Director of Libraries regarding shipping arrangements.

2. GIVING CASH TO BUY BOOKS
Cash gifts should be made payable to The University of Tennessee Library and sent to the Director of Libraries.

3. PROVIDING ENDOWMENTS
Gifts of endowments may be made now or included in the provisions of a will. The advice of an attorney or trust officer is generally desired in setting up endowment funds. The University will offer whatever assistance is requested.

Bookplate Acknowledgments
Names of those giving to the library will appear on bookplates placed in the books that are given or purchased with gift funds.

Books as Memorials
Special bookplates are available for books given as memorials. These plates carry the names of those giving and of those memorialized.

All gifts, of funds and of value of books given, are tax deductible. For further information, write William H. Jesse, Director of Libraries, The University of Tennessee, Knoxville.
