The University of Tennessee College of Law recognized law students and faculty for participation in the 1994 Moot Court Program with a banquet Friday, April 6, at the Foundry on the World’s Fair site. Awards were given to students and faculty for outstanding achievements during the year.

The Advocates’ Prize Appellate Moot Court Competition finals were held March 17. The team of Dianne E. Lashmit and Suzanne M. Sweet won the 1994 competition. Suzanne was also named Best Oralist. Kevin J. Allen and Jane E. Anderson placed second in the competition. The Best Brief award went to the team of Suzanne S. Queen and Theresa C. Willocks. Scott W. Anderson and John M. Gensheimer won for Second Place Brief. All are second-year law students.

The team of Thomas P. Wilson, Jr. and Charles E. Young won the Tenth Annual Ray H. Jenkins Trial Competition on April 15. Chuck also won the Best Oralist Award in the Jenkins Competition. Shannon M. Flynn and Michael L. Gallion placed second.

The Vinson and Elkins Achievement Awards for Moot Court were presented to Jason P. Hood and Jane M. Stahl for Oral Advocacy; and to Michelle L. Gensheimer, K. Hollyn Hollman and Michael G. Stewart for Brief Writing. Michelle, Holly and Mike were members of the National Moot Court team and their brief placed second in the regional competition.

The Chancellor George Lewis Moot Court Board Award was presented to Jonathan Cole for his leadership and service to the College of Law’s Moot Court program as its 1993-94 chair. E. Steele Clayton IV received the McClung Medal and the Phi Delta Phi Outstanding Moot Court Attorney Award. Both are awarded for outstanding proficiency in moot court. The Judith Turcotte Special Service Moot Court Award was presented to Leah M. Gerbitz.

Two faculty members were honored by receiving the Forrest W. Lacey Award for Outstanding Faculty Contribution to the Moot Court Program. The award was presented to Professor Gary L. Anderson and Steven Oberman, an adjunct professor and a Knoxville attorney, for their work with the National Trial team.

Several law students were also elected to the Order of Barristers, a national honorary organization whose primary mission is to encourage oral advocacy and brief-writing skills through effective law school programs. A committee of Moot Court team faculty advisors selected E. Steele Clayton IV, Rhonda D. Fawbush, Leah M. Gerbitz, Ray H. Hixson, Jr., Jason P. Hood, Clarence Risin, Jane M. Stahl, and Michael G. Stewart. All are third-year law students.

Members of all eight teams were honored with certificates. They included: the National Trial team: Bridget Bailey, Jonathan Cole, Peter B. Halverstadt, Bryan E. Larson, Lori D. Lovin, Trenny Rogers Fuller, Lisa M. Sherrill, and Tina M. Treiss; the Environmental Law team: Hunt S. Brown, Leah M. Gerbitz, and Dallas T. Reynolds III; the Frederick Douglass team: Clarence Risin and Michelle Y. Jones; the Evidence team: Amy E. Haddad, Jason P. Hood, and David M. Sanders; the Constitutional Law team: Ray H. Hixson, Jr., Barbara W. Johnson, and Michele M. Johnson; the Labor Law team: Jeffrey L. Hill, Jane M. Stahl, and Joseph M. Sbuttoni III; and the National team: Michelle L. Gensheimer, K. Hollyn Hollman, and Michael G. Stewart.

The College of Law Moot Court program fielded eight teams this year. “We had great performances from all of our teams,” said Jonathan Cole, 1993-94 Moot Court Chair “but the highlight of the year was the second place win by the tax team.”

The University of Tennessee College of Law’s Tax Moot Court Team placed second in the nation during the national competition in Clearwater, Florida, January 19-23. Steele Clayton was named best oralist for the competition. The team’s advisors were Professor Amy Hess and Timothy M. McLemore, an adjunct professor and local attorney. Team members were E. Steele Clayton, Rhonda Drinmon Fawbush and John C. Taylor. All are third-year law students.

The University of Tennessee College of Law’s 1994 Constitutional Law Moot Court team reached the final four at the national competition in Williamsburg, Virginia, February 24-27. Team members Ray Hixson, Barbara Johnson and Michele Johnson were defeated in the semifinals by the University of Georgia. Georgia won the competition. Professor of Law Jerry J. Phillips served as the team’s advisor. All the UT team members are third-year law students. “They bore themselves magnificently,” said Professor Phillips.

The Jerome Prince Evidence Moot Court team competed in their national competition, March 16-20, at Brooklyn Law School in New York. The UT team won three rounds of the single elimination competition before being defeated in the quarter finals. Team members Amy Haddad, Jason Hood and Dave Sanders argued evidence issues from a suit in which a member of one church was charged with burning the property of a rival church. Professor Neil Cohen served as the team’s advisor. “The team worked very hard and performed quite well in New York,” said Professor Cohen. “Jason Hood, the senior member of the team, provided outstanding leadership to the team. The UT Community should be proud of these students.”

The Labor Law Moot Court team competed in the Robert W. Wagner Memorial Labor Law Moot Court National Competition, March 16-21, at New York Law School. Team members Jeff Hill, Joey Sbuttoni and Jane Stahl made it to the quarter finals during the 40-team competition. Professor Pat Hardin served as the team’s advisor. “The team was unusually talented,” said Professor
A team of law students entered the Association of Trial Lawyers of America's National Trial Moot Court Competition in North Carolina this year. John M. Cooper, Randall J. Phillips, Keith D. Stewart, and K. Greg Williams represented the College of Law well in the competition. Harry L. Weddle III, a second-year law student, served as the team's advisor.

William M. Leech, Jr. was the featured speaker at the banquet and served as one of the judges for the 1994 Jenkins Competition. He is a former Attorney General of the State of Tennessee and is now with the Nashville law firm of Waller Lansden Dortch & Davis. Mr. Leech is also a 1966 graduate of the College of Law.

Moot Court chair Jonathan Cole also mentioned how proud the Board is of the law student participation in the Advocates' Prize and Jenkins Competitions this year due to extraordinary efforts of the competition coordinators. Steele Clayton, Rhonda Fawbush and Leah Gerbitz served as coordinators for the Advocates' Prize Competition. Twenty-four teams competed in the intraschool appellate competition. The Jenkins Competition also had twenty-four teams entered. Melissa Ashburn, Trenny Rogers and Tina Treiss served as Jenkins coordinators.

PDP Holds Spring Initiation and Banquet

The Roosevelt Inn Chapter of Phi Delta Phi held its annual initiation and banquet on April 10 at the Radisson Hotel. Professor Jerry Phillips opened the initiation ceremony with an invocation. International PDP President, Karl Mulvaney from Indianapolis, Indiana, presided. New inductees included: Rob Asbury, Albert Bart, Trace Blankenship, Greg Bowman, Angela Carico, Jennifer Clower, Sandy Copous, Melanie Davis, Laura Elkins, Chesney Falk, Donald Farinato, Joyce Francis, Mark Grayson, Angela Humphreys, Joe Johnson, Christine Jones, Linda McCain-Parsons, Jennifer Thompson, Chip Wilkins, Charles Williamson, and John Willis. Dean Larry Dessem was the faculty inductee.

Herbert S. Moncier was the featured speaker. His talk, "Caning; Three Strikes, You're Out; Fear; and Justice," was appreciated by the audience. He spoke about the war against crime in this country being waged because we are afraid of crime and no one is standing up for the rights of the citizenry because of this fear. Mr. Moncier, a 1970 UT law graduate, practices in Knoxville.

Wendy Proctor Addis presented service awards to first-year law students: Greg Bowman and Chesney Falk; second-year law students: Jane Anderson, Phil Burnette, Samyah Jubran, and David Skidmore; and third-year law students: Pete Halverstadt, Stephen Page and John Sholly. They had worked on such projects as Dismas House, the Phone-a-thon, the Mentor Program, and the Bench & Bar Speaker Series.

Personnel Particulars

Our condolences to Patty DeArmond, Law Library Specialist, on the death of her mother last month.

Our condolences to CJ Ottinger, Business Office, on the death of her father last month.

Jennifer Valentine organized an Earth Day clean-up for the College of Law on April 22. It was discovered that the biggest trash problem around good ole GCT is cigarette butts!

Jeremy Cohen, son of Professor Neil Cohen, has been elected Student Government Association President at Bearden High School for the 1994-95 school year.

Karla Thompson, daughter of Professor Jim Thompson (who is on leave) received her wings to fly C-135 tankers for the Air National Guard. Proud dad, Jim, pinned a pair of his wings on her during the ceremony. After graduating from a 13-month training program at Reese Air Force Base, she now continues to work toward her commission as a first lieutenant.

New Director of Admissions and Financial Aid to join staff in June

Karen Reagan Britton will join the Administrative Staff of The Univeristy of Tennessee College of Law as the new Director of Admissions and Financial Aid in June. She replaces Sybil Richards who left in December to begin a solo law practice.

Ms. Britton received a B.S. with honors in 1976 and a Master of Science in 1978 from UT-K. While at UT, she was on the Panhellenic Council Executive Committee and served as the Director of Rushing Activities; was in the Student Government and served as Election Commissioner; was on the Dean's Advisory Board; and was a Alpha Chi Omega sorority officer. Her honors included Mortar Board, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Scarabben Senior Sociey.

After graudation, Ms. Britton worked in the Department of Student Activities at UT-K as the Program Advisor and the Division of Continuing Education as the Coordinator of Conferences and Non-Credit Programs. She moved to Atlanta, Georgia in 1984 and worked at the Georgia Institute of Technology's Department of Continuing Education.

After returning to the Volunteer State later in 1984, she worked for Cobble Personnel in Knoxville as a Consultant. Since 1986, Ms. Britton has been the Director of Programs for Bass, Berry & Sims in Nashville.

She has held numerous leadership positions in the National Association for Law Placement, the National Law Firm Marketing Association, the Nashville Chamber of Commerce, and the Knoxville Dogwood Arts Festival.
