Project Title: Market Research and Design Plan for The Big Tease’s Debut LP

Principal Investigators: Chase Pattison

Secondary Investigators: Bill Dabbs, Gavin Foster, and Brent Moreland (the band)

Brief Description of the Project:

In order to maximize the potential of implementing a successful launch of any product, extensive marketing research must be completed. My research objectives are to find out how college students hear about and adopt new music, where these students purchase their music, what price students are willing to pay for a compact disc, and determine many of the other variables that affect students’ purchases. After collecting both quantitative and qualitative data through the methods of focus groups, in-depth interviews, and a questionnaire from a correctly identified sample of around two hundred UT students, this data can be used to determine the band’s marketing budget as well as who, specifically, to target their marketing campaign towards. Also, this information should help the band position themselves in the oversaturated music market as well as form the guiding structure for their advertising methods.

After the research has been completed, the band will be able to define how to allocate their resources toward the different channels of integrated marketing communications. There are six channels which can be pursued: personal selling, advertising, sales promotion, sponsorships, publicity, and point-of-purchase communications. Also, the information will help set sales goals as well as goals for increasing brand awareness, brand equity, and other variables. Finally, after the commercialization process has been completed, the market realities will be compared and contrasted with the different goals that the band has set for their product launch.

-sucks, decent, not a big fan, overall, not very impressed
-nightlife isn’t like an Athens or Nashville
-good locations, not good bands
-Blue Cats, Barley’s, Market Square, Moose’s (Liquid), New City
-strip is hard to compete with old city for music, strip is for bars/food
-strip is for the party, old city’s for the tree huggers
-not as much the cover charge as much as the atmosphere
-most K-Town bands are tree hugger bands, not fun, party bands
-People of Knoxville don’t have much interest in music
-parking is a problem
-Advertising is in the wrong place
-need to advertise well before
-100.3 The River, big time
-Poles are no good
-announce at shows about upcoming shows
-Billboards outside of the establishment

The Beacon
-pretty much everyday at school
-exposure… need to put ads in consecutively

Music Preferences, in general
- don’t like hard, heavy rock
- fun and upbeat music
- don’t mind if it’s cheesy as long as it’s “good”
- like

Local Music in Knoxville
- don’t know of many local bands
- think it would be fun to support a local band, but they have to like their music too
- don’t go to many concerts unless it’s someone they know
- would rather just go out to a bar with a DJ than pay to see live music, in general
- like both the strip and the old city
- don’t go to “shady” bars or clubs no matter who is playing there
- really like bands that play familiar songs
  - Velcro Pygmies
  - The Breakfast Club
  - Trotline

Explain the CD-buying decision process…
- hear songs on MTV or on the radio and like them
  - will buy a CD if they’ve only heard one song, but like the one song
- if other people have the CD and have given good feedback
- usually buy CD’s at Best Buy or Wal-Mart
- at live shows, willing to buy the band’s CD there if they like it
- price of the CD really makes a difference on whether they buy it or just download the one song
- the band’s personality, stage presence, good looks, etc. can affect their purchasing decisions

How do you hear about shows…
- word of mouth (friends, talk around campus)
- the daily beacon
- usually just hear that people are going to see someone that night
- don’t do much “pre-planning” to see a show unless it’s a really big band
Expectations of a band...

- better be fun when they play live
- like “younger” and more “hip” bands
- don’t like to pay a cover
  - a cover charge really affects their decision process on whether they go see a band or not
- rather see or listen to a fun band than a really talented band with no energy or stage presence

- pregame with friends before going out
- go to either Barley’s, Hanna’s, or Blue Cats in the Old City
  - whatever place is the best option

- drink a lot of beer and have a good time
- get loose and dance if there’s dancing
- enjoy a good band

Do you go out and see bands often, if so why?

- would rather go drink and hang out at a bar then pay a cover to see a live band, unless I knew it would be fun
- would go see a band if I knew a bunch of people were going
- would definitely go see a band if I knew a bunch of girls were going

How do you hear about new music?
- all over
- usually from friends
- I mainly just listen to WIVK 107.7 (country station)
- my girlfriend is big into new music, so she’s always playing new stuff for me
- don’t ever read the reviews in the daily beacon
- don’t subscribe to any music magazines or watch MTV or anything

Do you download, if so, describe your “downloading patterns...”
- Yes, all the time

Lives on campus (Knoxville Place)
(I would consider her a “music enthusiast”)

Describe your ideal “night on the town” in Knoxville
HAHA.... lets see... go out to eat, then probably go down to market square at pres. pub or old city if there’s a band... if not then hit the bars
Favorite Clubs...
- pres. pub's not bad... but blue cats gets most of the bigger bands... the pilot is a cool little place too but very small

Why would you rather see live music instead of going to a bar or club w/ a DJ?
-I love to see bands do what they’re supposed to do which is to perform...
-there’s something about seeing a show that helps you to understand what a band is all about.
-seeing a show live can make or break a band for me...
-I also like to watch people play their instruments... I really just like to see the talent that people have to offer...
-I know they’re the real deal if they’re good live...
-don’t particularly like what dj’s play...

Favorite Music...
-there really is no specific type but if you had to label it, then I guess it would be more indie or emo....cringe....
-fav. band is deathcab for cutie, muse, head automatica, rilo kiley, postal service...

These types of bands aren't mainstream, how do you hear about new music?
-typically from friends...
depending on where you’re from, you hear about some bands faster than others, so I have friends from all over that fill me in...
-also some TV shows like the co have really good music and they’re mostly from no name or newer bands so that helps me out some...

What do you think about the local music scene in Knoxville?
-its small but its getting bigger...
-the big tease is pretty big and they’re always a good time to watch...
-there aren’t a lot of local bands from Knoxville that I’m into,
-a couple of local bands from Nashville visit Knox quite a bit
Describe your CD and music purchasing habits...
I get a lot of things off of itunes...
    - if I hear a song and I like it, but don't know about the rest of the album then itunes is great because you can get just a single...
    - I typically go to best buy or target to get cds...
      - best buy has pretty much almost all the bands I listen to
      - surprisingly target has a lot too, though not as much...
    - I buy cd's probably 1x a week or ever 2 weeks...
Conclusions
From Market Research

• The Daily Beacon is the most effective publication for college students by far.
• In general, college kids do not buy or listen to albums from local Knoxville musicians.
• Even after seeing a band live, most college kids won’t buy a band’s CD until they have actually heard the album.
• Students expect to pay $8-$10 for a CD from a local musician.
• Venue can greatly affect concert attendance.
• There’s not one radio station that a majority of college kids listen to.
• When diagnosing music, males are more concerned about the quality and musicianship, and females respond more to the entire experience (live show, personality of the band, etc.)
• Officially our market will be students of the University of Tennessee, but The Big Tease Marketing Campaign will target collegiate females.
  o More likely to buy a CD at the type of live show we perform.
  o Females are less resistant to new bands.
  o Girls will buy a CD even if they’ve only heard one song as long as they really enjoy that one song.
  o Creating a strong female fan base can work as a marketing tool when trying to increase awareness and trial among males.
    • When going out at night, males “flock” to wherever the girls are.

RESPONDENT: 191 I really like them. They are a great band and their music is good to dance to.

RESPONDENT: 223 They're a great group of guys performing great music.

The Big Tease makes me cream my pants every time I hear them....they are so awesome....i also like to tickle my butthole
RESPONDENT: 224 while listening to Beautiful Addiction....and I am in love with Meg.
RESPONDENT: 225 They have a good sound and I believe are working to restore live music to the Strip, way to go Chase.
RESPONDENT: 226 I heard their CD from one of the girls who bought the CD and they are a good quality band.
RESPONDENT: 228 I enjoy the music, but sometimes find it trendy. The members are original, but need to take advantage of that.
RESPONDENT: 236 I love it...super down to earth
RESPONDENT: 237 They are excellent

I think they are a fun band with obvious talent. There is a sense of charm in their stage presence. I am not a fan of the title
RESPONDENT: 238 of their album(it sounds like every other debut album out there) but I would really like to listen to it. From what I have heard, I
