

Stay Well...

With COVID-19 affecting the entire world, work and school look very different to many of us.

Like other universities, UT Knoxville has cancelled all in-person classes and events through the summer. Classes are now held online, and some events have moved to an online platform. We hope to be able to meet in person this fall, but UT is preparing for the possibility that will be online, too.

Because of the chaotic changes over the past couple months, we have decided to make this newsletter shorter than usual. Unfortunately, we had to postpone the USSTRATCOM visit, which we were planning on writing about in this newsletter.

We hope that you and your loved ones are well!

Updates from IJNS

By Rachel Brooks

Associate Editor, Editorial Liaison for Special Issue on INSEN

March and April were very busy months for the staff of IJNS. We had to quickly and abruptly learn to work from our homes. Thankfully, journal activities readily adapt to online-only.

We are currently in the process of reviewing and editing submissions for our INSEN special issue. We hope to have this special issue published this summer.

If you have any questions about this issue, please contact the editorial liaison for this special issue, Rachel Brooks (rbrook31@vols.utk.edu).

We are still accepting submissions for our special issue on women in nuclear security. When submitting a manuscript, please include the phrase "WNS2020" in the title so we know that it is for the special issue. Please contact the editorial liaison for this special issue, Ashley Humphrey (ashleya.humphrey1@gmail.com).

OVERVIEW:

- Upcoming Events
- IJNS Updates

This newsletter is designed to keep students, staff, and journal supporters up-to-date on how the journal is impacting global efforts to encourage diversity in theoretical foundations, research methods, and approaches.

UPCOMING EVENTS

- Due to COVID-19, UT Knoxville decided to postpone the anticipated visit from USSTRATCOM. We do not yet know when it will be rescheduled, but we hope to be able to coordinate this visit again as soon as possible.
- Many events have been either postponed or moved to an online format. Check with the event organizer to see what their plans are for the events this summer.
